GETTING AT THE TRUTH.

How the Keystone Bank Was Operated.

Everybody In the Institution Seems to Have Had a Hand at the Crooked Work.

Philadelphia, Sept. 9.—J. Frank Lawrence, Charles P. Edge and E. L. Maguire, the clerks who had charge of the individual ledgers of the defunct Keystone National bank, were given a hearing before United States Commissioner Bell this morning. They were charged with altering the accounts in the ledgers for the purpose of deceiving the bank examiner and also the depositors of the institution.

Bank Examiner Drew was the first witness called and said he knew all three defendants.

"These papers you have shown me," he testified, "are daily statements of the condition of the bank. The first from ledger A to G, I suppose, was handed to me by Maguire. The second, from H to O, by Lawrence, and the third, from O to Z, by Edge.

"These represent the credit balances of every account in the ledgers, and were obtained for the purpose of verifying in detail the gross amount due to the depositors. They wtre compared with the ledger and were found to agree with them.

"In Maguire's ledger I found that alterations had been made, principally by dropping the thousands and in some cases omitting accounts altogether."

"How many instances of this kind did you find in ledger A to H?"

"There were 97 items of that kind, and they represented $185,000 suppressed liabilities."

"The sheet which I understand was prepared by Lawrence had 100 items of this kind, which represented the suppression of $175,000 of liabilities, and in that of Edge 132 crooked items were found, representing $250,000 suppressed liabilities.

"In some instances checks which were received on one day would be included in the preceding day's accounts."

A. R. Barrett, of the secret service of the United States treasury department, said he had found that the amounts of checks had been raised on the face of the ledger, bogus accounts were opened, and that altogether there was a total of $650,000 of suppressed liabilities.

MAINE'S THIRD PARTY.

Lewiston, Me., Sept. 9—A conference called by the committee of three, appointed at Cincinnati, to organize the people's party in this state, met to-day. A. A. Beaton, of Rockland, was appointed chairman. The Cincinnati platform was adopted. A state committee consisting of three members from each county was appointed. Dr. Webster, of Webb, was selected chairman of the committee. An executive committee to act with the national committee was also chosen.

PANAMA CANAL CASE.

Paris, Sept. 9.—The houses of several of the promoters of the Panama Canal company were to-day visited by the police with a view to obtaining additional evidence for use in the investigation of the affairs of the company.

MANUFACTURER FAILS.

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 9.—The Omaha Coffin Manufacturing company failed to-day for $20,000.

HIS DAY HAS GONE.

The Prince of Wales Openly Denounced.

English Royalty Stamped as a Fraud.

When Queen Victoria Dies What Will Follow?

Aristocratic Ears Made to Tingle in London.

The Time Has Gone By When Workingmen Slave to Feed the Unworthy Offspring of a Hereditary Ruler—Foreign Gossip.

London, Sept. 9.—The refusal of the trades congress committee to propose a toast that would include the Prince of Wales is regarded here as an echo of the widespread non-conformist sentiment which has set a mark of condemnation on the social life of the prince.

The discussion in the committee of arrangements is said to have been very pointed, and took in the whole range of the royal brood of Queen Victoria. One delegate boldly asserted that the family of the queen, apart from herself, had no claim whatever on the country, and that it was an outrage that the people should be expected to contribute to their support.

The long list of royal descendents was canvassed in vain for a name that the workingmen could consistently honor by special mention at their banquet, but not one could be found worthy, on his own account, of any such testimonial. The baccarat trial was gone over, and altogether it was a discussion to make the ears of royalty tingle. The conclusion was reached that none should be honored but the queen.

The Kaiser's Snub.

A Berlin dispatch says the news that the czar would avoid meeting the kaiser, on the return of the former from Denmark to St. Petersburg is quoted in confirmation of the views of those who anticipate war.

A meeting between the two sovereigns had been arranged some time ago, to take place after the czar's visit to Copenhagen. The cancelation of the appointment by the czar is regarded as proof that the latter does not consider it necessary any longer to retain the good will of the Germans.

When it was merely rumored that the czar had assumed an unfriendly attitude not much confidence was placed in the statement, and the official announcement has caused great surprise.

Italy's Warlike Moves.

The news that Italy is hastening to supply herself with a vast quantity of new rifles does not tend to allay the war feeling as in the embarrassed financial condition of that country, no expenditure, even for military purposes would be made except under a conviction of immediate necessity.

The Italian fleet also has received instructions to be ready for service upon call and many, both of officers and men, have been recalled from leave of absence. This action, however, like the notice to the German reserves, may, it is suggested, be simply precautionary.

The Dardanelles.

It is rumored that the British fleet now in the Mediterranean will shortly be ordered to Constantinople, as a hint to the sultan of the possible fate of his city should he become too aggressive toward England. It is also stated in a dispatch from Stamboul, that the British fleet, when it arrives, will pass the Dardanelles into the Black sea and give notice thereby to Russia that the Black sea is not a Russian lake.

Driven to Murder.

From Keiff comes the account of a horrible tragedy. A Jew named Kaplan, driven to desperation by an order to leave Russia, he having been deprived of a comfortable business by former decrees, first shot his wife, and then, one by one, his five children. He afterward killed himself.

Kaplan left a note stating the motive for the crime, which was his desire to save his family from otherwise inevitable misery.

From other parts of Russia comes news of tragedies attendant on the failure of the harvest and the consequent suffering and struggle for existence.

While no cases of cannibalism have been reported there have been several cases of mysterious disappearance that are attributed to suspected cannibalism, and in Bessarabia the police are carefully watching for evidence against persons under suspicion.

Many suicides are stated to have occurred among the peasantry, who, owing to a strong religious feeling, have been, as a rule, slow to commit this act. There is nothing reassuring in Russian advices and the prospect for the winter is too terrible to contemplate.

SUGAR CORPORATION DISSOLVED.

Boston, Sept. 9.—The Standard Refinery and the Bay State Sugar Refinery company were dissolved to-day as corporations by Justice Morton in the supreme court.

REQUISITION HONORED.

Columbus, Sept. 9.—The governor to-day honored a requisition from Kentucky for Robert Williams, who is under arrest at Springfield, O., for obtaining money under false pretenses at Frankfort, Ky.

TO BACK THE JUNTA.

London, Sept. 9.—The Times says that a syndicate of European capitalists has offered to advance half a million pounds to the Chilian junta to meet pressing requirements.

J. J. FREEMAN.

MYSTERIOUS POISONING.

A Whole Family Taken Desperately Ill.

Beneville, Kan., Sept. 9.—Nine people of this place are at the point of death as the result of having partaken of poison in the food served at dinner at the house of George Gregg.

Mr. Gregg returned from Iowa last Saturday, where he had gone to bring home his wife and children, who had been visiting there. A young lady, a relative, whose name has not yet been learned, accompanied Mrs. Gregg. Sunday Ira Johnson, a neighbor, called on the way home from church and accepted an invitation to dinner. Eight persons sat down to the table, Mr. and Mrs. Gregg, their four children, the visiting relative and Ira Johnson. Soon after dinner they all became violently ill, exhibiting all the symptoms of poisoning. Shortly afterwards the servant, who had in the meantime eaten dinner, also became ill, showing the same symptoms. Since then all have grown steadily worse, and the recovery of none of the victims is expected. What the nature of the poison was and how it was administered are questions that remain to be answered.

TO THWART THE LAW.

Denver, Col., Sept. 9.—The notorious Mme. Astle, now in the hands of the law because her lover, W. A. Anthony, in order to get even with her fickle behavior, gave the officer a clew that led to her arrest, is about to close that gentleman's mouth by having a marriage ceremony performed between them.

In this state a husband cannot testify against his wife nor a wife against her husband. They are to be married in the cell the madame occupies and that within a few days. This gives the authorities no concern, for there is evidence enough apart from that of Anthony to convict her.

FRANCE AND THE POPE.

Rome, Sept. 9.—20,000 French workingmen will make a pilgrimage to Rome this month. They will read an address to the Pope thanking him for his labor encyclical. The vatican is informed by the French muncio that the clergy are growing more favorable to the doctrine of adhesion to the republic.

MEXICO'S DENIAL

City of Mexico, Sept. 9.—The sensational news recently published concerning a forthcoming revolution in this country is not only utterly false but idiotic, and reflects small credit on the editors of the papers that originated the foolish reports. Mexico is no more likely under ordinary circumstances to be plunged into a revolution than the United States.

FORAKER IS TALKING

And Frigid John Won't Say a Word.

The Sky-Rocket Politician From Cincinnati Alarmed at Sherman's Coolness.

New York, Sept. 9.—A special to the Press from Washington says:

"I have a letter here from Governor Foraker," said a government official today who hails from Ohio, "and I will let you read a portion of it."

So saying he folded the letter so as to show only the last half of the second page, which contained the following: "There is a fight on hand which is very unfortunate for the State ticket.

"I did not commence it, and want my friends to understand the fact without any possibility of misunderstanding, either for the present or for the future. Sherman commenced it. He knows that I am ambitious to go to the senate, and he acknowledges that I have a right to entertain that ambition. Nevertheless, he has undertaken to get some of my friends away from me.

"I will not stand this, and have so notified Sherman. He must not make any fight for the senate during the pending campaign, and I will not.

"I have not mentioned the senatorship to any one, save to say that I will be a candidate. Sherman must also play fair. If he does not we will have to lock horns."

GOULD'S FAILING HEALTH.

He is an Overworked Man and Must Rest.

His Trembling Hand, Haggard Look, and Sunken Eyes Cause Alarm in the Street.

New York, Sept. 9.—The Recorder this morning says Jay Gould was in Wall street yesterday for the first time since his return from his western trip. His appearance was startling. He looked haggard. He was deathly pale and his eyes were sunken. His hands were trembling and his voice was quivering.

"An overworked man," was the comment of those who saw him. When he stepped from his private car Saturday he was congratulated upon his improved looks. Three days had wrought a marvelous change in him.

Five years ago last January Mr. Gould gave up his business on account of his health. His affairs were taken in hand by his son, George J. Gould, and conducted with ability. The panic of last November and the succeeding events drew Mr. Gould back into the financial maelstrom.

His physical powers were gone, however. The trip to the west followed. From his looks it does not seem too much to say that he must give up business cares entirely.

His affairs will be put in the hands of his sons, George J. and Edwin, both men grown. Mr. Gould appreciates the importance of his health. He keeps with him almost constantly Dr. John P. Munn, a physician of high reputation.

DATES BACK TO THE WAR

Tom Allen's Death Brought Out a Sensation.

His Real Name Was Frazee and He Took the Name of His Dead Companion.

Sioux City, Iowa, Sept. 9—Tom Allen, a well known character was killed Monday by a mule kicking him in the head. Within a few hours after he was dead, an acquaintance who had known Allen since before the war, said that Allen's real name was Frazee, and that he had killed a provost marshal during the war.

He and several others were pursued for desertion, when Frazee fired at the marshal and killed him. The party then fled.

In crossing a stream one of the deserters named Tom Allen was drowned and Frazee immediately decided to take his name.

JUTE DRAWBACK.

Washington, Sept. 9.—The treasury department has modified all former regulations issued concerning the drawback to be allowed on exported jute bagging, and has directed that collectors of customs allow a drawback of two cents per bale on cotton of last year's crop covered with jute bagging.

THE BAND STILL PLAYS

And the Strains Continue to Be Discords.

Sherman and Foraker Wrangle Grows Warmer.

An Attempt to Offset the Coming Democratic Day by Trotting Out Blaine and Harrison.

Columbus, Sept 9.—(Special)—The Republican leaders are sending out from their throats a dismal wail over the scheme of Colonel Neal providing for a "Democratic Governors' Day," October 6th, and say that all the free-traders of the country are furnishing the democratic committee with money to make this splurge.

The cry on their part it attributable to the fact that thus far they have failed to make the barons who have grown fat from robbing the people under the guise of protection come down with the cold cash in as lively a manner as was anticipated.

Mr. Hahn's messengers have been through Pennsylvania and New York the past week trying to induce the moneyed men and monopolists who have become immensely rich by reason of the tariff bill passed by the billion dollar congress to contribute liberally of their ill-gotten gains to the boodle fund being raised to promote the cause of McKinleyism in Ohio.

Three of the messengers have sent the discouraging news to their chief that money is scarce, but that several of the millionaires said that they would get Tom Reed and other statesmen of his ilk, who are opposed to the free coinage of silver to go into Ohio and make their fight on that subject and fight shy of the tariff.

During the past week the telegraph wires have been burdened with messages to the silver men of the far west trying to induce some of them to come to Ohio to aid the republicans in their hopeless fight, but ther efforts in this direction thus far have been fruitless.

It is possible that Reed and a few of his henchmen will lend McKinley a helping hand, but they will not make the fight entirely on the silver question—in fact, they will make a strenuous effort to defend the outrageous and arbitrary course of Reed and his henchmen in passing laws without a constitutional quorum.

Several of the speakers who, it is expected, will preach republican tariff doctrine and anti-silver coinage ideas will not forget that the iron and other interests that aided the republicans to elect Harrison must have something said in favor of the McKinley tariff.

It is a well known fact, and has been warmly discussed by the republican state committee, that McKinley has made a great mistake in making the tariff question a secondary issue in the pending campaign.

The fact is his nomination was made upon the idea that he would be able to convince the people of Ohio that protection was just the thing most needed to promote their happiness and prosperity.

Another matter discussed by the committee was the failure of the eastern manufacturers who promised to contribute $100,000 to make good their promises, unless McKinley casts aside his advocacy of the anti-free coinage of silver and turns his attention to the tariff question. The committee can procure plenty of boodle if McKinley will only foster his protective offspring, but if the child of protection is to be cast aside, then money will not be forthcoming.

Harrison and Blaine.

To offset Mr. Neal's political celebration on the 6th of next month the republicans have been discussing quietly among themselves the idea of bringing Blaine and Harrison to Ohio about the last of October. For this meeting it is expected a contribution of $50,000 will be raised by the friends of Harrson and his officeholders.

Free trains are to be run from every point in the state and fireworks, music, beer, whisky, eatables and about everything else is to be free.

The brewers of this city have already been approached and asked how much they would contribute.

No matter what they may do, they cannot change a vote in this section of Ohio, as the democrats are united and fighting for their entire ticket from Gov. Campbell down to the infirmary director, while the republicans are planning to elect one member of the legislature, a thing, however, that is impossible under the existing circumstances, no matter what course they may pursue or adopt.

The Farmers' alliance is pretty strong in this part of the state and there will undoubtedly be a good many alliance ballots cast, but the democracy will not suffer to any appreciable extent on this score, as the alliance fight is against McKinley and in favor of a low tariff and free coinage.

Sherman and Foraker.

The Sherman-Foraker senatorial fight is waxing warmer daily, and by the time all of the nominations for the legislature have been made these belligerents will undoubtedly have lost considerable hair; and, from present indications, Foraker will be the greater loser, notwithstanding the fact that he stated in a letter to a friend in Washington that Sherman drove him into the senatorial fight, and that he (Foraker) wants his friends to stand by him.

Foraker has no true friends, but has a set of henchmen whose reputation for political and official honesty is well known to the people of Ohio.

His henchmen are of such a stripe that they would not be trusted by individuals in any enterprise of any magnitude whatever.

His mainstay in Hamilton county is George B. Cox, whose reputation is well known not only to the honest and conservative citizens of that county but to the people of the state.

He was twice defeated in that county for official position when the remainder of the Republican ticket was elected. He manipulated the last Republican convention of that county, and has been traveling over the state setting up the pins in the interest of Foraker, but has been knocked down so often of late that he has concluded to stay in his own ballwick and do what he can for the election of the republican ticket.

Foraker's followers claim that Sherman brought the senatorial question into this campaign, and that they would defeat him if democratic senators and representatives had to be elected in order to hold down Icicle John.

They claim that ex-Congressman Thompson, of the Portsmouth district, robbed them of a representative in each of the counties of Jackson and Fayette.

In the latter county it is said that they made the candidate pledge himself before he could be nominated. Hildebrand, of Ashland, who was in the senate during the past two years, was also required to pledge himself for Sherman, although he is in favor of Foraker.

The contest between Foraker and Sherman will be a warm and bitter one, and the friends of Sherman claim that Sherman's long public career will be brought to a close, while on the other hand the friends of Sherman say that Foraker was laid in his political grave by Jim Campbell, and that the people do not want so erratic a man to represent them in the greatest legislative body in the world.

The Nomination of Griffin.

The news that Charlie Griffin has been renominated for the legislature caused many a smile among the friends of Foraker, but as the campaign proceeds in Lucas county and Charley's great record in Toledo and the halls of legislation is raked over, the people will learn that he was for nobody but Charles P. Griffin.

Nobody has yet discovered where his ability as a statesman comes in, except those who could use him to further any political scheme in the interest of his party. It is said that he will make numerous claims to having secured the passage of a number of bills in certain interests, but when the records are examined, it will be seen that the democrats had a majority in both branches, and to that party the people are indebted for whatever good laws were placed upon the statute books.

FAVOR PROHIBITION.

Washington C. H., O., Sept. 9.—The Ohio Methodist Protestant conference came out squarely in favor of prohibition and sat down on both tax and license. The report of the committee on temperance elicited a great deal of spirited discussion, but was carried by the prohibitionists, who constitute a large majority of the ministerial membership of the conference. Rev. J. F. Henkle, the newly-elected president of the conference, is an unswerving republican.

NEWS FROM NORWALK.

A Campbell Club Organized For Work.

County Fair in Session—Coming County Conventions—Miscellaneous Mention.

Norwalk, O., Sept. 9.—(Special)—Hon. John A. Williamson, of this city, is favorably mentioned in connection with the republican nomination for common pleas judge.

The public schools opened under the management of a new superintendent, Mr. Beichy. The attendance is much larger than ever before. There is an unusual number of scholars from the parochial schools this year.

The Huron county republican convention will meet in this city next Saturday, and the democratic convention September 19.

The republicans will undoubtedly renominate Hon. L. C. Laylin for representative. In fact, no other man is prominently mentioned.

David Morris, chief train dispatcher of the Wheeling & Lake Erie railroad, will be wedded Thursday evening of this week to Miss Matie Edwards, one of the handsomest young ladies in the city, the daughter of Mr. Samuel Edwards. "Dave," who is popular with all classes, is to be congratulated.

Great preparations are being made for the Huron county fair, which begins to-day. There will be new and special attractions and with good weather the attendance will be greater than on any other year. The number of entries is far in excess of any other season. There will be some fine races, the purses being very liberal.

Miss Nellie Kellogg has returned home after six months absence with friends in Washington, New York and Palmer, Mass.

Mrs. L. V. Stoughton left yesterday for Washington, D. C. Wednesday her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Fry, will celebrate their golden wedding.

A young man by the name of Burns, who is employed at C. H. Morgan's stable, was robbed Saturday of $55, which he had left in his pantaloons under his mattress.

Mrs. Dr. Fred Martin has returned from her summer's visit to North and South Carolina.

Henry McDonald, father of Dr. L. H. McDonald, who was an old pioneer of Norwalk, died Friday and his funeral was largely attended Saturday.

The democrats have organized a James E. Campbell club in this city officered as follows: President, J. E. Erf; vice-presidents, Mart Sydam, Jr., Jacob Hund and John Mack; secretary, T. C. Mahan; treasurer, C. P. Ventz. Mart Suydam was elected captain of the club.

HE BET ON THE RACES

And Used the Bank's Money to Do It With.

The Usual Story of Wrong Doing Which Has Placed Another Quaker Behind the Bars.

Philadelphia, Sept. 9.—Oliver C. Wilson, Jr., paying teller of the produce national bank of this city, has been arrested charged with embezzling $2,500 of the bank's funds.

An official of the bank tells the following facts: "We did not suspect anything wrong with the young man, but a few days ago during one of our regular examinations it was discovered that Wilson was short $2,500 in his accounts. When confronted with proofs of his guilt he did not deny the charge but said he had been led into evil by dissipation and gambling on the Gloucester races.

"We have nothing to do in the arrest and criminal proceedings, as we are amply secured by a bond of $10,000 of the American Surety company of New York, who are the bondsmen of the young man, and I suppose that they are also amply secured. The defalcation is the result of months of small peculations, which were easily discovered when the books were examined."

Those who know the young man intimately are of the unanimous opinion that it is a case of good-hearted young fellow gone wrong through reckless generosity and thoughtlessness.

ONE MORE FATALITY

From Blowing Out the Gas in a Hotel.

One Life Lost—Another on the Verge of Death—The Victims Prominent in Stark County.

Mary Powell, chambermaid at the Jefferson house, made the startling discovery about 8 o'clock this morning, that the gas in room 81, on the third floor, was escaping, and that the occupants could not be aroused, as the door was locked and the transom closed.

Hastily summoning Mr. S. H. Thompson, the day clerk, the two with a bell boy went to the room. The transom was forced open and the bell boy dropped into the room and unlocked the door. Here the discovery was made that the gas turned on full head and out, and the two occupants of the room were lying in an unconscious condition in bed.

James Boyd was dead when found, but J. C. Elsass was unconscious and breathing heavily.

Drs. Jones and Chamberlain were called and soon had Mr. Elsass breathing easier, but not out of danger.

Coroner Roulet was called, and the following facts were learned:

James Boyd, president, and J. C. Elsass, secretary, of the Wanesburg Brick and Clay company, came to the city last evening, registered and took supper together at the Jefferson, and were given the same room.

The gentlemen spent the evening in and around the hotel, and went to their room at a late hour. Before retiring they had a social chat with Chas. J. Deckman, Past Colonel Commanding O. D., S. of V., of Malvern, Ohio, in room 105.

Mr. Deckman states that the gentlemen retired to their room shortly after 12 o'clock, and that he knew nothing of the sad occurrance until a friend who had seen him talking with the gentlemen last night told him of it and took him up to the room.

Mr. Boyd was between 65 and 70 years old., and letters and notes of identification were found in his pockets, also $125.85 and a gold watch and chain. Mr. Boyd was apparently a wealthy gentleman, as tax receipts amounting to quite a sum were among the papers found. Little could be learned of his family.

Mr. Boyd was one of the directors and president of the Waynesburg Brick and Clay company, of Waynesburg, Stark county, Ohio.

J. C. Elsass is about 35 years old, and has the appearance of being a fine gentleman. He had a close call, and until he revives the full facts of the affair cannot be had.

Mr. Elsass is married. He is secretary of the Waynesburg Brick & Clay company. He has a brother in the jewelry trade at Waynesburg, G. W. Elsass, and is the junior member of the dry goods firm of Beans & Elsass, of Waynesburg. Mr. Boyd and Mr. Elsass came to this city to make a contract for brick with Mr. John Streicher, of this city, and were to go to Canton this morning.

Coroner Roulet telegraphed to the friends of both men, also to the Brick & Clay company they represent.

Undertaker Cadwell was given charge of the body of Boyd to prepare it for burial.

The inquest will be held to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, at the coroner's office.

How the accident happened no one knows, but it is presumed that a mistake was made in turning out the light, the electric light and gas fixtures being very close together.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon Mr. Elsass' condition was somewhat better. He is still unconscious, and the attending physicians are doing all they can for him. Mr. Deckman received word from Elsass' business partner and brother that they had started for Toledo, and would arrive this evening.

The earnings of the Toledo, Columbus & Cincinnati railroad for the firs' week in August were 6,854, an increase of $941 over the same week of last year.

The earnings of the Toledo & Ohio Central railroad for the first week in August were $28,647, a decrease of $1,284 compared with last year.

Improvements at Toledo.

The Pennsylvania Railroad company will expend $20,000 at Toledo this fall. Among the improvements will be the erection of a new round house that will accommodate 14 engines.

Mr. Hall's Badge.

General Passenger Agent James M. Hall, of the Wheeling & Lake Erie railroad, was aide de camp on the staff of Commander-in-Chief Russell A. Alger, of the G. A. R., in 1890. A permanent staff association has been organized and this morning Mr. Hall received a handsome badge that has been adopted and will be worn only by Gen. Alger's staff. It is suspended from a bar bearing the inscription: "1890—G. A. R. Staff." The obverse side of the badge reads: "Russell A. Alger G. A. R. Staff Association, Organized, Boston, Mass., August 14, 1890," and the reverse bears a relief of Gen. Alger himself. It is suspended by a yellow ribbon, the color of the national body. Mr. Hall has been appointed aide de camp on the staff of the present commander, Gen. John Palmer.

ANOTHER LEADER GONE.

Francois Paul Jules Grevy is Dead.

His Demise Occurred in France To-day.

A Powerful Man, Ex-President of the French Republic Has Closed His Earthly Career.

Paris, Sept. 9.—Francois Paul Jules Grevy, ex-president of the French republic, died to-day.

M. Grevy was born, according to the usual statements, at Mont-Sous-Vaudiez, in the Jura, August 15, 1813. The register of his birth, however, shows the fact to be that he was born in 1807.

He was educated at the college of Poligny, studied law in Paris, and in due course was admitted as an advocate.

He took part in the revolution of 1830 and in 1848 was appointed commissary of the provisional government in his department, and was sent to the constituent assembly from the Jura.

In the legislative body M. Grevy, while reserving the right of independent action, generally voted with the extreme left.

He opposed the government of Louis Napoleon and protested against the expedition to Rome. After the coup d'etat he withdrew from politics, but was in 1869 again returned as deputy for the Jura.

On February 17, 1871, M. Grevy was elected president of the national assembly, in which most important, and, at that time, trying position, he exhibited remarkable tact, judgment and moderation.

In 1873 he resigned this office, being succeeded by M. Buffet. In 1876 he was returned to the national assembly by the arrondissement of Dole, in the department of the Jura, and on the meeting of the chamber he was elected its president. He was re-elected by the new chamber of deputies, November 10, 1877, and again in January, 1879.

After the resignation of Marshal MacMahon, M. Grevy was elected president of the French republic for seven years on January 30, 1879, when 563 votes were recorded in his favor, 99 being given to Gen. Chanzy against his will, five for M. Gambetta, one each for Gen. L'Adreault, the Due D'Aumale and Gen. Gallifet. Forty-three voting papers were blank and 87 senators and deputies were absent.

CHARLES A. FLICKINGER

Plays Fast and Lose With Foraker and Sherman.

Heller is on the Fence and Waits a Chance to Jump—Why Kumler Pocketed His Little Resolution.

"Flickinger is a Sherman man."

"Flickinger is for Foraker, you bet."

These and similar statements are heard every hour of the day by the opposing factions in the local republican fight.

It is stated on the very best authority that the silver-haired orator pledged himself for Foraker to Hon. Jake Romeis the night before the convention.

"I know it is so," said a Foraker man yesterday, "for Jake told me so, and whatever other failings Jake may have he never lies. Oh, I guess Flick is all right."

"The ——he is," said another republican who was present. "Jim Brown told Kent Hamilton and Kent told me that he (Flickinger) had voluntarily come to the postoffice and solemnly declared he was for Sherman, first and last and all the time. You can bet he is a Sherman man."

"How does Heller stand?"

"Well, he is on the fence waiting to see on which side it will be more popular to jump. The candidates stand about thus: Griffin is reliably Foraker, Flickinger is Sherman just at present and Heller is on the fence. Griffin, Foraker or no Foraker, is going to be elected."

"Griffin has a pull with the laboring classes," said the first speaker. "I wonder if the workingmen of Toledo knew that Griffin was the one who introduced the bill by the enactment of which a married man receiving a salary of $50 a month or over can be garnisheed, what would they think of their champion."

"It is said that Messer is sore."

"Sore, well I should say so. And his friends are sore. They think he was as much entitled to a third term as was Griffin. He was a representative German and they cannot foist Flickinger upon the German voters as a representative German. He renounced his nationality, and if there is anything a German hates it is a renegade or a traitor."

Jake Donaldson did not visit Toledo in vain, and Messrs. Brown, Waldorf and Austin are a trio of braves that are hard to down. He never went into a fight yet that he did not win.

"Wait and see," said one of Brown's friends, "if Brown don't give Griffin the hottest fight ever he got in his life. Squire, who is a warm friend of Brown, has tried to square matters between him and Griffin, but so far has been unsuccessful."

"What seems to be the trouble?"

"Brown owes his position to Sherman and he can't go back on him. Griffin wants the speakership and to get it he must have Foraker's support. See."

"Have you heard of Emmick's latest. No? Well, he has been around trying to square himself on his trick during the recent Sherman-Foraker conferences. He has been hand in hand with Waldorf, but he declares he is an out and out Foraker man. I tell you there will be no leaders on the fence this trip. It was Emmick, it is said, who gave away the secret that Kumler was to present a resolution at the convention pledging all legislative candidates to support Foraker for senator. The resolution presented was a fake which he had with him to present in an emergency. The scheme was so transparent that a child could see through it."

It may be remarked here that the Bee published the fact that Mr. Kumler would present such a resolution, but it was not from Mayor Emmick that the news was obtained. It is but fair to state this in justice to Mr. Emmick.

ANCHORS TO WINDWARD.

Harrison is Deep in the Political Schemes.

Why Elkins Will Enter the Cabinet.

The Official Family to Be Reconstructed With a Purpose of Keeping Ben in Office.

Washington, Sept. 9.—A belief is pretty general here this evening that Mr. Stephen B. Elkins has been tendered the portfolio of war by the president, and that he will begin the discharge of his duties on the 1st of October. Secretary Proctor submitted his resignation to the president, to take effect on the last day of this month.

The president has accepted it and addressed a very pleasant letter to Mr. Proctor regarding his withdrawal from the Cabinet, but complimented him upon being selected to represent his state in the United States Senate.

The news that Elkins had been tendered the place and had accepted it came from an Elkins source.

Elkins' appointment is going to be given out as a recognition of the new south by the administration. Elkins is to pose as a southern man and will be expected as such to handle the delegates from the southern states in the next national convention.

There are rumors here that some of the cabinet officers are very much opposed to Elkins' appointment. It is said that Mr. Noble does not like it; that Gen. Tracy does not like it; that Jerry Rusk thinks the president could do a great deal better; but Foster and Parker Miller approve, as they will approve anything good, bad or indifferent that Harrison determines on.

If Steve gets his commission he will make a picturesque cabinet officer. He would not be much at home in the war department, although he would try to make himself at home for the time being; but in the interior department with the land grant applications to boss, Indian contracts to handle, pension appropriations to deal out, patents to speculate on, he would be a mighty man.

Perhaps a vacancy can be made abroad in the diplomatic service that Noble would consent to fill. He is very anxious for a diplomatic post and anxious to get out of the cabinet. If a vacancy satisfactory to his tastes, however, cannot be made, pressure will be brought upon him to move over to the war department and give the interior to Elkins.

Elkins' readiness to accept a cabinet office under Harrison is suggestive. He wants the title of a cabinet officer, a sentimental cause of his acceptance of it. He is hoping to make something more substantial, however, than sentiment out of whatever bureau he will be given to boss.

On Harrison's side of the question the situation is very plain. Harrison feels in his heart of hearts that Blaine will not be in a physical or mental condition to be thought of for a presidential nomination next year, but he fears Blaine's friends and he fears a rally that is now being made to organize the opposition to the renomination program under the Blaine banner.

Consequently he is trying to disarm his opponents by enlisting the ablest of the Blaine lieutenants, men like Fassett of New York and Elkins at large, under the Harrison banner.

Elkins, Kerens and company have been recognized as Blaine men for years back. They were for Blaine, of course, and would be for him still if they saw the way clear to get him, but they are first of all for themselves, and are always on the lookout for the hereafter.

If they cannot get their favorite, Blaine, they are always on the edge of anxiety to be in with the winner and to place the winner in a position to be under some obligation to them. This is too play they are making in trying to put Elkins in the cabinet.

There are a good many sneers here on the part of the republican prudes at the suggestion of Elkins for a cabinet place, but it is called to their attention that a much more fine-strung president than Harrison, namely, Chester A. Arthur, made Bill Chandler a cabinet officer, and the question is asked, if Bill Chandler could be put in the cabinet by Arthur, why should Harrison hesitate to give Elkins the portfolio?

Just now nearly everybody on the inside in political matters in this city feel reasonably certain that Elkins will go into the cabinet in a very short time. It need not surprise anybody if there will be a pretty thorough reorganization of the cabinet before next winter.

It need not surprise anybody, too, if in the reorganization Harrison entirely surrendered all the active working to the bosses of the party and eschewed all pretence of respectability for the time being.

Clarkson, like Elkins, would like to go into the cabinet, and under the circumstances it would not be astonishing if a portfolio were eventually provided for Clarkson.

The expectation here is that Blaine will get out in some way within a few months, that Further Miller be put on the bench, that Noble will be disposed of in some way or other, that perhaps Tracy may be withdrawn and that men like Elkins, Clarkson and Platt may be called to the cabinet in person.

At any rate Elkins' appointment seems very probable at this time, but of course, it will hang in the balance and be kept as a mystery for some time yet.

Elkins is an original Missourian. His father still lives in Missouri and is a fine, old-fashioned democrat.

Steve himself started in life a democrat and first attracted the attention of his fellow-men during the civil war. It is said that he has a Missouri war record, but that is a matter of some doubt.

If the adjutant-general of the state of Missouri would make an examination of the rolls in the department for the period between 1861 and 1865, perhaps he might be able to throw some very interesting light on the situation.

Elkins at one time represented the territory of New Mexico as a delegate in congress. It was then that he came into active contact with Blaine, which is the period during which the Maine statesman presided over the house of representatives and was actively casting anchors to windward.

If Elkins succeeds in getting a seat in the cabinet it will be an interesting illustration of what an American citizen, no matter under what circumstance he is brought up and lived and flourished, could eventually aspire to.

HOLD THEM AS SLAVES.

No Wonder Samoans Want to Fight.

The Natives Have Been Robbed and Are Now Serving their German Masters.

New York, Sept. 9.—The World's correspondent at Apia, Samoa, declares that the German land owners on the Islands are holding many natives in slavery.

The Germans obtained the land years ago by getting the natives drunk and making one-sided bargains with them in exchange for whisky.

This explains the present antipathy of the people for everything German.

The land-owners then employed natives nominally as laborers, but really on contracts, which have resulted in their virtual enslavement. The condition of the unfortunate Samoans, says the correspondent, is rapidly growing worse.

PRESIDENTIAL APPOINTMENTS.

Cape May, N. J., Sept. 9.—President Harrison this morning appointed Hugh Thompson register of the land office at Crookston, Minn., vice H. Dickman, removed.

SHORT IN HIS ACCOUNTS.

Township Treasurer Frantz has Gone Wrong.

Ottawa, O., Sept 9.—W. W. Frantz is short in the sum of nearly $7,000. He has been treasurer of Blanchard township for three years, having been re-elected last spring.

The trustees have just completed a settlement and found that the township fund is short $5,062 and the school fund $1,696. The bondsmen on the township board are Daniel Frantz, Lewis P. Crawfis and John B. Harman, in a bond of $5,000. The bond for school fund is for $6,000, with Gen. A. V. Rice and Lewis P. Crawfis as sure ties.

THE FOUR AND A HALFS.

Washington, Sept. 9.—The 4½ per cent. bonds received at the treasury department yesterday for continuance at 2 per cent. amounted to $12,500, making the total to date $24,050,350.

The 4½ per cent. bonds received at the department for redemption amounted to $107,050, making the total thus far redeemed $9,943,750. These figures do not include the transactions at the sub treasury at New York.

ROADMASTERS.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 9.—The Roadmaster's Association of America began its ninth annual meeting here with 100 delegates present. Mayor Winston, himself a railroad man, made a welcoming speech for the city and John McMullen for the Northwestern Track and Bridge association. President Doyle responded.

THEY HAD TO COME DOWN.

The Itata Affair Promises to Haunt Us.

The Case Against the Boat Will Not Be Pressed—Minister Egan's Position.

Washington, Sept. 9.—The Chilian situation is gradually assuming a stable character, and less interest is manifested in it in official circles since it is taken for granted that the new government, with Gen. Montt at its head, is fully installed in the confidence of the people, and all that is lacking to an official recognition by the various powers is the perfection of the details of government.

Minister Egan has full instructions on that point, and when he indicates to the United States that the time is ripe for such action the state department will formally recognize the accredited representative of the Montt government at Washington, and the cordial relations which have always existed between the United States and Chili will again be resumed.

As an evidence of this, it is said that the United States will not press the case of the Itata, the insurgent vessel which was libelled at San Diego, Cal., for furnishing arms to the insurgent man-of-war Esmeralda. Mr. Trumbull, prominently identified with the insurgent side in the Chilian contest, was, it will be remembered, the supercargo on the Itata, and was indicted by the grand jury at San Diego. He is now in Washington. It is alleged in official circles that to continue the prosecutions under the changed conditions of affairs would be to exhibit a feeling of unfriendliness to the Montt government.

Attorney-General Miller refuses to say what action the United States government will take in the Itata matter, or to discuss the changed conditions.

FORCED THEM TO CASH UP.

Langston Scores a Victory in Columbus.

The Republican Party Was In Need of His Services and He Fixed the Rate.

Columbus, Sept. 9.—According to surface indications the Hon. John M. Langston, colored politician and ex-congressman from Virginia, has succeeded in forcing the republican state executive committee to terms and to pay the price asked by him for his services.

In a recent special from here the statement was made that Mr. Langston had been requested to come to Ohio, but positively refused to do so unless he was handsomely remunerated for his time.

He is just now out of a job and it became necessary that he got something to do that would bring the cash. The committee at first declined to comply with Mr. Langston's terms and undertook to bulldoze him into coming to Ohio on the guarantee that his expenses would be paid.

However, the ex-congressman will not receive anything like the amount paid the white speakers imported to the state, which is said to be $50 a day and expenses for the most prominent. He being a colored man, in the eyes of the republican party, is not worth as much as the white speakers.

During the past week Mr. Langston has visited Columbus twice to hold conference with Chairman Hahn. The first meeting, early in the week, did not terminate satisfactorily to the man looking for a job, but he returned here and it is understood that an agreement was reached by which he will orate on several occasions during the pending campaign.

It is evident that the Virginia colored gentleman is anxious that his salary start at once, as he began his labors through an interview published in the republican papers on Saturday. He starts out very well, but his figures seem to be decidedly at variance with those of equally competent republican authority. The New York Mail and Express, whose orthodox republicanism no one will question, recently investigated the records at Washington and found that under the present administration only 116 colored people are employed in the several departments. Mr. Langston leads off in Ohio by denying this statement and giving out a lot of inflated figures calculated to mislead and deceive the colored voters of the state. He makes the statement that, instead of the 116 colored employes as stated on good republican authority, there are 2,393 now employed in the various departments. The difference in the figures is so great that it is reasonable to presume that Mr. Langston's statement is inflated for campaign purposes, and if his speeches are to be judged by a comparison with the statement made in the New York Mail and Express it is evident that not much reliance can be placed in them.

While on the colored question it might not be amiss to state that there is a movement on foot to form an organization composed of colored people living in the pivotal states with a view to cutting a figure in the next national campaign. This means the states where the republicans would without the colored vote be bowled over in the minority, and includes Ohio, New York, Indiana and Pennsylvania. As yet no definite plans are formed for the proposed organization, but it is known that a number of prominent colored people living in the states mentioned are corresponding in regard to the matter with a view to calling a meeting at some time following close upon the November elections for the purpose indicated.

HAS HE SNUBBED THE KAISER?

Berlin, Sept. 9.—An official dispatch has been received from Copenhagen which makes the announcement that the czar, who is now there, will be unable to visit the German kaiser before his return to Russia, as had been projected. This news is considered as confirmatory of the existence of an entente between Russia and France of such a character as would render difficult an interview between the two monarchs.

EDITOR BUNDY SERIOUSLY ILL.

New York, Sept. 9.—A Paris cablegram announces that Major J. M. Bundy, editor of the Mail and Express, has been stricken by apoplexy, and there is very little hope of his recovery.

MADE THE RENTS EASY.

Berlin, Sept. 9.—In consequence of the bad harvests, Duke Fatiber has remitted two-thirds of the rents of the tenants on his estate.

THE CASHIER A THIEF.

Secret of the Lenox Hill Bank Failure.

Charles De Barril Stole All Funds in Sight.

The Defaulting Officer Threatened to Kill Himself, But Changed His Mind and Escaped.

New York, Sept. 9.—The directors of the Lenox Hill bank, about three weeks ago, notified all of their depositors to close their accounts. A statement was made that the bank was permanently going out of business because its earnings did not justify the stockholders in keeping it open any longer. The depositors were quick to respond.

So much scandal has been associated with the concern that the small shopkeepers who had entrusted their savings to its vaults for safe keeping were on hand bright and early the next morning after the notices were received. Long before the doors were open a string of anxious men and women waited with pass-books in their hands. That morning the bank had $125,000 on hand. Before the closing hour came the last cent had vanished. Every depositor had been paid in full.

No one ever questioned the explanation given by the directors. It was generally understood that the disastrous scandal into which the bank was plunged by the rascalities of the Pell-Chausen-Wallack clique had so shaken public confidence that even its reorganization by honest men had not restored it to a sound foundation.

It had been conducted for more than a year upon the most conservative policy. Those who knew how gingerly it had been about making investments readily accepted the reasons given by the directors, never suspecting that a fresh scandal had just been developed.

Probably the real motive of the directors in placing the bank in liquidation would not even be publicly known but for diligent inquiries that have recently been made concerning the whereabouts of Cashier Charles De Barril. It got noised about that De Barril had mysteriously disappeared, and that his disappearance dated about the time the depositors received their notice.

People began to ask questions, and they have now found out that the cashier of the Lenox Hill was a defaulter, and that his shortage and the manner in which he mismanaged the bank's affairs precipitated the closing up.

The day before the closing was announced President Wolff discovered that a collection made on a draft of a customer had not been entered on the books An investigation showed that other collections had also disappeared. Cashier De Barril was asked for an explanation, but instead of satisfying the president he hurriedly left the bank. He never returned.

An examination of De Barril's accounts showed a shortage, though just how large is not definitely known. Some people say that the shortage will exceed $20,000, though President Wolff said yesterday that the amount was not so large. It was also developed that the cashier had made some very bad investments and had loaned large sums of money to personal friends without sufficient security.

But more than all, it was found that De Barril was the silent partner in a Sixth avenue liquor saloon and that he had put a good deal of the bank's money into the place, entering on the books of the bank as collateral the individual notes of his partner.

The bank's capital was seriously impaired and the available assets were not quite enough to pay back to the stockholders the money they had invested. The directors immediately voted to close up business without complaint. It was believed that there would be enough left to pay the stockholders between 75 and 80 cents on the dollar.

The shrinkage in the assets, however, has been worse than was then expected, and report is now current that they will get far below the estimated amount.

LOOKING TO THE PACIFIC.

Egan Makes Haste to Square Himself With Chili.

He Has Leaped Over to the Other Side With the Same Agility That He Jumped Toward Balmaceda.

Washington, Sept. 9.—Although the efforts of this government to further the introduction of American meat products into Europe have not abated as a result of the success of the negotiations with Germany, the greater part of the official attention is now being directed to the advancement of American interests in the Pacific.

So far as Chili is concerned, the department of state is more encouraged by Minister Egan's cablegram, announcing the establishment of cordial relations between himself and the provisional government.

The officials of the department specially call attention to the fact that the provisional government of Chili was not organized until the 4th instant and on the same day it was recognized by the American minister, who had been instructed by cable to do so.

This action is not a formal official recognition, but is all that can be done by any nation at this juncture and it is in line with precedents of diplomatic proceedings.

When the revolution in Spain in 1873, succeeded in overthrowing the monarcy, Mr. Fish, the secretary of the state, instructed Mr. Sickles, the American minister to Spain, as follows:

"So soon as the republican government is fully established and in possession of the power of the nation, you will recognize it."

This was followed after the election of the Spanish president by the issuance of new credentials to Minister Sickles, and so when a new president of Chili is elected, Mr. Egan will receive credentials of the same kind. Meanwhile he will continue the friendly relations he has already established with the provisional government.

Reports are expected to reach the department of state in a few days from Honolulu, embodying the announcement of the death of John Bominis, the prince consort. Developments in that quarter are being narrowly watched on account of the possibility of an upheaval and the resulting jeopardy of American interests.

Such official information as has reached the department from Samoa is indicative of a feeling of unrest among the natives, and it was believed to be politic to send a man-of-war there. This vessel—the Iriquois—arrived at Apia a few days ago. There is at present a German man-of-war there and an English cruiser is expected to reach Apia in a few days. With these vessels lending support to the established government of the islands, it is felt that any resistance to Malieto, who occupies the throne as a result of the tripartite agreement, will be speedily overcome.

JUDGE SAWYER DEAD.

San Francisco, Sept. 9.—Judge Lorenzo Sawyer died last evening. His death was quite sudden and unexpected, as his condition had slightly improved during the day.

Judge Lorenzo Sawyer, of the United States circuit court for the northern district of California, was born in Jefferson county, N. Y., in 1820, but had lived in California since 1850. He had been ill of bronchitis for two weeks, but the immediate cause of death was the formation of a clot of blood during a violent fit of coughing.

ROBERTS' CRIME.

Maple, the Cashier, Says He Is the Wrong Man.

St. Marys, O., Sept. 9.—United States Detective Alex Bourquin, of this city, received word from Cashier Maples this morning that he thought Roberts, who is under arrest charged with being the Columbus Grove robber and murderer, innocent, and that in all probabilities an alibi would be proven. He also stated that Bourquin should keep a close watch on the man as he was under suspicion, and that he, Maples, was more convinced every day that the detective was on the right track.

KILLED BY AN OFFICER.

Columbus, O., Sept. 9.—Henry Webster, a tough negro, was shot and killed while resisting arrest, yesterday. He was drunk and threatened to kill Officer George Feist, who was going to arrest him. The officer continued after him, and the negro shot back twice, but neither ball took effect, as the negro dodged behind a telegraph pole.

Officer Feist took careful aim and sent a bullet through his body, killing him instantly.

OCEAN RECORDS.

London, Sept. 9.—The steamship City of New York, from New York September 2 for Liverpool, passed Browhead yesterday. Her time to Fastnet was 5 days, 22 hours and 30 minutes, which breaks the eastbound record. The China and Japan mails per steamship Empress of Japan to Vancouver, and Canadian Pacific railway to New York, were aboard the City of New York and will reach London in 20 days from Yokohama, beating all previous mail records.

TO CHECK IMMIGRATION.

Budapesth, Sept. 9.—A circular issued by the government announces that the postal bureau will hereafter refuse to deliver prospectuses or other documents sent out by emigration agencies.

Measures will also be taken by the government to suppress the agencies.

WHOLE FAMILY SUICIDES.

Paris, Sept. 9.—A family of this city, consisting of six members, committed suicide Monday. The father and mother first hanged themselves, and the other four, who were adult children, imitated their parents.

OCEANS OF CIDER.

Making the Most of the Apple Crop.

Apples Eight Cents a Bushel and Cider Five Cents a Gallon at the Mill.

Reading, Pa., Sept. 9.—Enough cider has been made in eastern Pennsylvania this season to fill the Schuylkill to its brim were the flood to go dry.

Indeed, the present is an unprecedented apple year, and farmers in all up-counties hereabouts have not been slow to improve their opportunities for profit from it.

Steam and hydraulic cider presses have been established at almost every cross-roads, where hundreds of teams, laden with apples, can be seen collected any day now, their drivers awaiting their turn to have the fruit transformed into sparkling cider.

Isaac Schode's steam press at Rhrersburg makes 4,000 gallons per day. Kalbach's mill at Mount Pleasant and High Mill at Van Reed each turn out from sixty to seventy barrels of the liquid daily. Schlegel & Lesher's plant at Stenchburg presses out 100 barrels.

At Douglassville Clinton Buckwalter turns out 3,000 gallons, and an equal quantity is produced at the Bernville Cider Mills.

At dozens of other establishments the daily output is also very large, the capacity of some of the presses being 25 barrels an hour. Cider is selling wholesale hereabouts at 5 cents a gallon. Cider apples are readily bought for 8 cents a bushel, and even less. Eight bushels of apples yield a barrel of cider. Frequently four or five gallons are pressed from one bushel.

A noteworthy result of this activity is the great scarcity of barrels in which to store the cider and of pottery and crockery in which to pack the apple butter made from cider by boiling.

DISCUSSING OUR HOG.

Paris, Sept. 9.—The Temps says that the decree of the German government removing the embargo on American pork is a veritable "coup de etat," astounding the agrarian party, who believed in the axiom that the government would never withdraw the prohibition. The progressionists, the Temps adds, are intoxicated with their success, their leading delusion being that free American pork means free grain in the future.

ALIENS IN ENGAND.

London, Sept. 9.—The official report shows that during the month of August 14,028 European aliens landed in England. For the corresponding period of 1890 the number of the same class of arrivals was 9,415. The report also states that during August of this year 9,187 of these people departed for America, while in August of 1890 the number of departures for that country was 6,027.

AFTER RUSSIAN MONEY.

St Petersburg, Sept. 9. A number of American engineers who are reported to be agents of a wealthy firm which proposes to make a tender for building the Siberian railway, have arrived at Vladivostock to ascertain the conditions of the construction of the line.

THE NOTICE OF CONTEST.

Salem, Mass., Sept. 9.—Counsel for Timothy Hopkins has filed notice of contest of the will of Mrs. Searles on the ground of undue influence. A hearing was fixed for September 22.

MURDERED BY A COUNT.

A Woman's Life Blotted Out By a Bullet.

The Murderer Ends His Own Miserable Existence After Doing the Bloody Deed.

Topeka, Kan., Sept. 9.—One of the most terrible tragedies occurred in Topeka yesterday. A German named Gustav Berger and his wife Johanna were seated at the breakfast with their three children, boys, aged 4, 6 and 8 years.

The husband and wife had been quarreling since Saturday over some rent money paid to them. The wife wished a dollar to buy some clothing for one of the boys. The husband did not wish to spend the money for the purpose and threatened to kill his wife, who, in fear, ran from the dining room out upon the porch.

The husband rushed for his revolver, followed his wife out doors and shot her through the back, killing her instantly.

He then turned the pistol upon himself and blew out his brains. Berger emigrated from Germany to Chili, afterward coming to this country about ten years ago. He had lived in Topeka for six years and owned three other houses besides the one he occupied at 1906 East Third street.

The couple had been divorced, and were remarried in Topeka about one year ago. Berger has not been in any regular employment for a year past, but formerly was a bookkeeper for A. P. Connelly.

Berger was a German count, 46 years of age. His wife was 26. She was remarkably pretty. She came to this country ten years ago to marry the man who murdered her.

"A BACK NUMBER."

This is the slighting remark that is so often applied to women who try to seem young, though they no longer look so. Sometimes appearances are deceitful. Female weakness, functional troubles, displacements and irregularities will add fifteen years to a woman's looks. These troubles are removed by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Try this remedy, all you whose beauty and freshness is fading from such causes, and no longer figure in society as a "back number." It's guaranteed to give satisfaction in every case, or money paid for it returned. See guarantee on bottle wrapper.

LEFT HIS DEBTS BEHIND.

Seventeen Months as a Western Tramp.

His Wife Sued to Recover Life Insurance.

An Acquaintance Found Him in Oregon and Now He is Behind Prison Bars.

Portland, Ore., Sept. 9.—Beauregard Dorrence Whilden, of Birmingham, Ala., who is under arrest here for attempting to swindle the New York Life Insurance company out of $40,000, has had quite a checkered career in his 29 years of life.

Eight years ago he arrived in Birmingham with $65 in his pocket, but by economy soon accumulated enough money to go into the grocery business.

Then he went into business with a young man named Campbell, and the Birmingham boom coming along about this time the firm's credit was rated at $100,000. Whilden and Campbell speculated in Birmingham real estate, and when the boom passed over they were flat broke.

Then Whilden married a daughter of Captain M. N. Woods, one of the wealthiest men of New Orleans, who started him in business again. Luck was against Whilden and he soon found himself harrassed by debtors.

In an interview he told how he came to disappear, which resulted in his wife suing the insurance companies for the amount of the policies held by him. He said:

"I saw myself drifting down and getting deeper and deeper in debt and no way to get out. It preyed on my mind for months and I got in a perfectly morbid condition. I wanted to get away and felt that if my mind could be relieved of constant care and worry, in a new country I could recover myself and get back the money I had lost and pay everything I owed.

"I have always, since I was 26 years old, carried from $20,000 to $40,000 insurance on my life in various companies. But when financial worry had so upset my mind that I saw no way out of my difficulties but flight, I pledge you my word I thought notaing of this insurance.

"My one idea was to get away, cowardly though I see it now to have been. So on the 12th of March, 1890, I left my home in Birmingham, saying I was going to Decatur to do some collecting.

"I hired a boat, telling the owner I was going down the river to Brown's Ferry, about twenty miles away. I rowed down about ten miles, pulled the boat to a log near the bank, got off, changed my clothes, putting on a suit I had with me, and set the boat adrift. It was my intention to convey the impression that I had met death by drowning.

I waded about five miles through a swamp and happened to find a freight train with a hot box standing on a switch on the Memphis and Charleston railroad.

I concealed myself in the caboose, rode up to the junction at some point in Georgia and took a train for St. Louis, where I got work at carpentering from a man named Whiteside.

"I worked there till June, when I was taken sick and had to quit. From St. Louis I went to Denver, walking 450 miles of the way. In Denver I worked in a brickyard for three months. Then it shut down and I went to Salt Lake.

"Then I got to work at carpentering until the first storms set in, when I went to San Bernardino, Cal., where I went to work on a ranch. I also got a contract for furnishing 3,000,000 brick to two contractors, Dewar and Chism, on which, owing to losing 4,000 brick through rain, I made but $200.

"From San Bernardino I came direct to Portland in March last. I tried to obtain work here at carpentering or brickmaking, but could not succeed. Finally I got a job on a ranch out beyond East Portland, but as I could not plow I did not stay.

"I went from there to Astoria, and from there I walked 52 miles into Tillamook county, and took up a timber claim. I remained there about a month, when I walked back to Portland by way of Yamhill, arriving here some time in May.

"After I got here I went to work for the Columbia Watch company in Ainsworth block as solicitor. I made a success of it from the start, as they will tell you. I worked at other schemes in the way of advertising, and was in a fair way to make my way and get on my feet in this country when I was arrested.

"In this way I travelled always under the name of Baxter Weldon. I came into the Quimby house one morning about a month ago and saw sitting at the dining-table a drummer for the Arbuckle coffee house, named Trammel.

"He stared at me at the table as though he knew me. I had known him in Alabama. That night he began talking to me, and in the course of conversation said I reminded him very much of an intimate friend of his in Alabama named Whilden.

"I laughed at the matter and said he must be mistaken. I took a trip to Montana and through Washington for several weeks and returned on Saturday. On the following Friday I was arrested. The man Trammel had notified the insurance companies that he could locate me on the promise of $500, he did so.

"I am guilty of no crime except it be remaining in hiding and allowing suits to be brought for the policies of insurance. The charge of forgery is trumped up by the insurance companies in order to take me back to Alabama. I have never committed crime, and at the time I left my home my only thought was to flee from my debts.

"In all of the 17 months of my absence not a syllable of communication has passed between my family and myself. They are entirely innocent of any complicity in my disappearance or knowledge that I was living."

Whilden declared he will not be taken back to Alabama alive. He received the following telegram from his wife, who is an art teacher in Chattanooga:

"Telegraph me something by which I can know positively that you are living. I will telegraph money and trust to your honor to come home. We all want you."

RHODE ISLAND MILITIA.

Washington, Sept. 9.—In a report to the war department on the condition of the Rhode Island militia, Lieut. M. W. Crawford, Second artillery, who inspected the state troops during their recent encampment at Oakland Beach, commends the showing made, particularly in company drill. "The colored troops," he says, "excelled all in skirmish drill." Great improvement was noticed in battalion drill. Lieut. Crawford says that in his opinion the net results of the five days' encampment were excellent, and that the state has been fully repaid for the expenditures made.

LABOR IMPORTERS.

Washington, Sept. 9.—The treasury department is informed of the arrest in Chicago by Inspectors Stitch and Fleming of A. P. T. Elder and H. L. Barber, composing the Elder Publishing company of that city. They were engaged in the wholesale importation of laborers from Canada. The arrests are regarded as very important. The matter has been referred to the United States district attorney at Chicago for prosecution.

CHARGED WITH EMBEZZLEMENT.

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 9.—M. H. Davidson, postmaster of Haleyville, Ala., was arrested here to-day by Postoffice Inspector Peer on a charge of embezzling government money. Davidson ran for congress last year in the Sixth district on the independent ticket. He is the editor of the Haley ville Review.

BEAUTIFUL WEATHER

For The Toledo Exposition Thus Far This Week.

Large Crowds Are in Attendance To-day.

Yesterday's Races—Fine Display in All of the Departments—Some of the Exhibits—Notes by the Way.

To-day commenced the realization of the fondest hopes of the Toledo Exposition managers, and the crowd at the grounds is simply immense. They commenced arriving this morning in numbers ahead of expectations and continued increasing during the day. It would appear that the people are determined to take advantage of the fine weather and make up for the failure of the exposition last year.

Everything is running smoothly to-day. The exhibits are in order, all of the stands are filled and every department is crowded to its utmost capacity. The management are taking good care of their patrons and much praise is heard from exhibitors for the treatment received. Besides the large number of people from the city, there were large numbers of visitors from the country and towns in northwestern Ohio.

The crowd is bent on pleasure, and as they surge hither and thither nothing but good nature prevails.

The weather promises to be fine for the whole week and now nothing can prevent the exposition from being the biggest kind of a success and Toledo is assured of a fair hereafter that will be one of the city's great attractions during the fall season.

The races are attracting considerable interest this afternoon and the grand stand is crowded with interested spectators and the sport is lively.

The 2-year-old pace which was on the program for this afternoon has been postponed and to-day's races are the 2:17 class, pacing, the 2-year-old trotting and the mile dash running race. The entries in the 2:17 pace are Ivorine, Rally Wilkes, Emma and Lucy B. The entries in the trotting race are Austraind, Baratone, Rader Eastman and Little Link. The entries in the 2-year-old trot are Quickstep, Nyanza and Arling.

The program for to-morrow is as follows:

2:22 class, trotting	$500
2:30 class, trotting	500
Running mile heats, 2 in 3 added	100

There will be a 2:29 trot to-morrow in which are entered Biddie Donovin, Magnoma, Steven R, Nightingale.

Stock was shown and awards made in the following classes to-day:

Horses—Belgian draft, general purpose, standard bred, trotters and imported coach.

Cattle—Shorthorns, Ayrshires, Herefords and Jerseys.

Sheep—Fine wool, long wools, Shropshiredowns, Hampshiredowns, Dilaine Merinos, Southdowns, Oxfordowns.

Swine—Berkshires, Poland chinas, Chester whites, Suffolk and Yorkshire breeds, Duroc or Jersey red and Essex.

Morning Scenes

The exposition in the morning presents a most interesting spectacle, although there are not nearly so many people on the grounds as in the afternoon, and the public has an idea that a fair does not amount to much in the morning. This is a mistaken impression, for many of the exhibits can be seen to best advantage in the morning before the grounds are crowded.

Most of the stock is shown for award in the morning, then may be seen the machinery being made ready for the day's exhibition and its true merits can be judged. The fakirs are setting up their stands, the army of attendants are preparing for the day, the horsemen are exercising and grooming their animals and the whole grounds are animated with a different spirit from the afternoon. The freaks from the numerous side shows are walking about, without the accessories of paint and costume that hide their real forms while under the canvass, the rural visitors can be seen arriving, and the fair in reality is almost a different exhibition at different times of the day.

A Busy Department.

The business end of the fair is an exceedingly busy department. The offices are under the grand stand, and here crowds are waiting before the different windows all day.

Secretary Crane is obliged to bear the brunt of the rush and is in demand by every one, but the ticket agent, the cashier, the entry clerks and all of the assistants have all they can at end to, and the wonder is that they are able to keep their wits about them. Yet, notwithstanding the rush, everybody is courteously attended to in turn and it is a rare thing to hear a complaint.

All of the employees wear neat white caps with "Toledo Exposition" printed on a gold ribbon band, and tasty badges show what department the employe belongs to.

Especial attention is being paid to the safety of exhibits this year, and the exposition company has on the grounds a small army of watchmen, constables and special officers whose sole duty is to protect property of every description. The fire protection is also complete.

Special Attractions.

Norman the great bareback rider is a splendid attraction and his two exhibitions daily are witnessed by thousands and his daring feats are something well worth seeing.

To-morrow at noon will occur a grand parade of all the horses and cattle on the grounds. This will take place on the race track and in full view of the grand stand.

The handsome new dancing pavilion is a most popular resort. Here a splendid orchestra discourses fine music all afternoon and the dances are numerous.

Yesterday's Races.

The attendance at the Exposition yesterday afternoon was rather small, but it is never very large the first and second days.

The attract ons, of course, was the first contest in the speed department. Only three events came off, but they were interesting and afforded plenty of sport.

The favorites were beaten throughout, and as a consequence the bookmakers lost considerable money.

The first event of the Exposition was the 3:00 trot, best three in five, purse $500.

There were five entries in this race, Gypsy Queen, Baron-stein, Plucky, Bessie Wilkes and Myrtle, but Baronstein (Mr. Geo. H. Ketcham's late purchase) did not arrive and Plucky was withdrawn, leaving but three entries.

The third and fourth heats were very exciting, and the purse was finally pulled down by Dr. Newton's filly, Bessie Wilkes. Myrtle sold the favorite in every heat. Summary:

Bessie Wilkes	2	1	1
Myrtle	1	2	2	2
Gypsy Queen	3	3	d

Time—2:34, 2:31½, 2:30¾, 2:32.

The second event was the 2:30 pace, three in five, purse $500. Five heats were paced and the first money was taken by Brown Frank. Although there were seven entries there were but four starters. Brown Frank and Kirick were the favorites. Summary:

Brown Frank	3	1	1	2	3
Kirick	1	2	2	1	1
DeFrino	2	3	4	3	2
Little Redbuck	4	4	3	4	4

Time—2:33, 2:30, 2:31, 2:30½, 2:34.

In the running race Baratone won two straight heats. There were but three starters, Baratone, selling favorite. Summary:

Paratone	11
Little Link	22
Austraind	33

Time: 1:32, 1:32½.

One of the features of the day was the exhibition given by Prof. Van Norman, who rode two horses a half mile, standing on them in 55 seconds.

Couches and Easy Chairs.

As the visitor enters main building at the aquarium, the eye catches the fine display of richly upholstered couches, divans, easy chairs and lounges from the factory of Geo. J. Wahvogel & Bro., at the corner of St. Clair and Oak streets. Various pieces of furniture are shown richly upholstered in delicate shades of silk and plush that are fit to grace the palace of a king or an American millionaire. This enterprising firm gives special attention to reupholstering and recovering worn furniture, and none but first class work is allowed to leave the store.

Not This Year.

It was the purpose of John Bladon & Son to make a display at the exposition this year, but were not able to secure suitable space in which to make a satisfactory exhibit. They have, however, placed on exhibition at their factory on Ontario street, near the new Pythian Castle, some splendid new work that is worth seeing. Their end spring top buggies cannot be excelled, and their cut under and O. G. Back surreys are unequaled in this market.

Charming Music.

The visitor who passes the new Pythian Castle on the corner of Jefferson and Ontario streets is charmed with the sweet strains of music that pour forth from the piano rooms of J. W. Greene & Co., occupying the three store rooms of this beautiful building. The music is produced by the celebrated Conover Brothers and Vose & Sons' pianos. These pianos are in every way strictly first class instruments, possessing certain patented improvements, invented, owned and used exclusively by these manufacturers. These improvements are not mere vageries to talk about, but important inventions, the advantages of which will be easily understood by all who examine them. Messrs. Greene & Co. sell other makes of pianos and they are also exclusive agents in this territory for the Estey, Packard and Wilcox & White organs than which there are no better instruments made. The aim of the manufacturers has been to give the very best article in quality that it is possible to produce with skilled labor and perfect facilities, and a rapidly increasing business gives evidence that it is the true policy, the only one resulting in mutual satisfaction, and they pledge themselves to continue it.

This notice would be incomplete without calling the visitor's attention to the "Standard" rotary shuttle sewing machine for which this firm are also exclusive agents. The "Standard" in general design and finish is superior to anything ever attempted in sewing machines, and it is admitted on all sides that it will do a greater variety of work. Exposition visitors should not leave the city without paying this house a visit.

Pianos and Organs.

The Whitney & Currier Co. have always had a large and fine exhibit of pianos and organs, but this year they have the outdone all former efforts. Their display of grand and upright pianos and pipe and reed organs was never equaled in Northern Ohio, and if you go into the main building you cannot miss it, for it strikes both the eye and ear at once. Some one is playing a magnificent Boardman & Gray grand piano nearly all of the time for the benefit of the admiring throng around this beautiful exhibit.

China and Art Pottery.

L. Hassenzahl's exhibit of china and art pottery is exceedingly fine and is attracting the public's attention and admiration. This is the first china exhibition displayed at the fair in 12 years. Mr. Hassenzahl is a prominent young man, and his store which is located at 232 and 234 Summit, rank first of its kind. The booth at the fair is very artistic.

China and Glass Ware.

The Daudt Glass and Crockery company are represented in main hall with a monster tea pot, a present from Mr. Alfred Meakin, of England. They are too busy to make any further display this year, but invite visitors to call at their extensive store at 236 Summit street, where they have the largest line of fine goods ever seen in this section.

The Chapman Hardware Co.

The young people gather around the excellent display of bicycles made by this firm in the west wing of main hall. Beside the Victor they are showing a full line of wheels made by the Western Wheel works, including the Rob Roy Rush, Crescent and Juno, the last two are cushion tire wheels, something new in Toledo. This firm are the manufacturer's wholesale agents for these fine wheels. They are distributing a vast amount of very expensive printed matter to the crowds in attendance.

The Lion Dry Goods Co.

Have a fine display of carpets, draperies, cloaks and other fine goods near the center of Main Hall.

Nicholas & Buchanan

Are to the left of the east entrance of Main Hall with a well arranged display of stationery, novelties and wall decorations.

A Bower of Beauty.

The magnificent display of carpets, rugs and draperies made by Sterling & Co., is a veritable bower of beauty and wealth. These are the exquisite figures in Wilton, Moquette, Axminster, Push and Body Brussels carpets. The richest products of the orient in Daghistan and Smyrna rugs and a wealth of fur rugs in all shades and colors. Around the entire display are draped fine curtains in Satin Derby, Silk Velvet, Brussels, Louis XIV., Nottingham, Antique and Swiss Laces. Manager Sisson is to be congratulated on the beauty and tasteful arrangement of this exhibit.

Free Souvenirs.

The free souvenirs studies given away by W. E. Cawood, the enterprising jeweler, are eagerly sought for by the crowds of visitors in main hall. A fine pair of silver bronze Italian dancing figures are an interesting feature of his beautiful display. Mr. Cawood is showing a large line of exquisite souvenir spoons, and a great variety of K. P. and other society charms, of which he makes quite a speciality, having a large assortment of his own designing.

Will Be a Great Race.

The 2:22 trotting race for to-morrow has been changed to 2:29 class, and the horses entered are Biddie Donovan, Magnoma, Steven R and Nightingale as mentioned elsewhere. These well known horses will make a lively race, and they are attracting much attention.

Fair Notes.

This is typical fair weather.

Machinery hall is well filled.

The merry-go-round is here.

The Toledo Business College are "in it."

Milburn Wagon Co. has a good display.

About 10,000 people visited the fair to-day.

No empty spaces seen at the fair this year.

Mayor Emmick was seen on the grounds to-day.

The tin type gallery is being well patronized.

Mayor Emmick was an early visitor at the grounds to-day.

Mrs. Tom Temple has charge of a beautiful flower display.

An old clock that was made in 1663 is on exhibition in the old fashioned room.

The lunch stands have been well patronized to-day.

A mammoth number of buggies and carriages are exhibited.

Mr. Waldvogle has his first exhibit at the fair this year; it is fine.

The crowd that commenced arriving soon after dinner kept the gatekeepers busy.

A great many people from the neighboring towns visited the fair to-day.

The ladies of the Fifth Presbyterian church lunch stand are having great success.

Mrs. Kumler and Mrs. Campbell were among the purchasers at the Libby glass booth.

The ladies of the Fifth Presbyterian church lunch stand serve a fine dinner for a quarter.

Prof. Squire has an arrangement whereby he is enabled to play five instruments. He is a genius.

Miss Gillete has a magnificent display in the art department of favors and delicate bits of painting.

On account of a combination signed by the reaper and mower men but three exhibitions of this kind are on the grounds.

Messrs. Morris, Dewey and Cummings are the judges for to-day's races. Mr. Cummings is standing judge and Mr. J. B. Bell is also one of the timers.

The check room is in charge of the Exposition company, under care of Miss Hattie Gasser, and everything is well cared for.

There are a number of bands on the ground besides those regularly employed by the exposition. The shows furnish plenty of music.

Titus, "the hustler," is serving his patrons well at dining hall No. 4. He is certainly putting up a good meal.

F. Gradolph at dining hall No. 1 is furnishing the hungry sight seers with the best that can be produced for 25c.

Hang your hat on "The Brackett," when you go into Brackett's Exposition dining hall and you will be served with one of the best 25c dinners to be had at the fair.

The old man with the fiddle and his companion, "the vocalist, the blind bandorman and the accordeon player, are all here.

The textile exhibit is especially fine this year and besides filling the building assigned to it a large number of cages are placed outside.

The large chemical engine from engine house No. 1, with a crew of firemen from No. 3, is on the grounds. The engine house is next to the main hall and the horses are in readiness all the time.

The grove is a very popular place for those who spend the whole day on the grounds and it makes a most convenient place for lunching.

Worts, Kirk & Bigelow's display is very sweet; confectionery, cakes, etc., being the principal exhibits. This is ever the same reliable firm.

The satin spar jewelry which is on exhibition is quite a curiosity. The stones are gotten in Ireland, taken to England and put in shape to send abroad.

The ladies' society of the Third Presbyterian church have their dining hall at the Octagon stand, near the vegetable palace, where they serve substantial meals and excellent coffee.

Visitors to the exposition will please note that the best place to buy dress goods, silks, jackets and all dry goods, is at Connolly Bros., 439 Summit street, near Oak.

Mr. F. Gradolph at Stand No. 1, is putting up one of the best meals on the exposition grounds for 25 cents. All kinds of refreshments are served to the satisfaction of all.

The ladies of the Disciples church are well pleased with the business they are doing at their dining hall at the Exposition grounds. Everything is neat and clean at their tables, and they are deserving of patronage.

Blind beggars are very numerous, and there seems to be a sudden influx of such characters. They are found every where, singing doleful songs and making doubtful music on all sorts of worn out instruments.

One of the institutions for the convenience of all doing business on the grounds is the telephone exchange. A number of 'phones are in use in the different departments, and the newspaper offices and the general 'phone is in constant demand.

Out of respect to the memory of Mr. Tom Temple, whose display was next to that of C. J. Wolley & Co. last year, the booth is opened in the morning and closed in the evening with Mr. Temple's favorite, hymn "Nearer My God to Thee," executed on the piano by Mr. Will Stackhouse.

Prominent among the many fine displays is that of Emerick & Smith, the Summit street dealers in horse and turf goods. Their exhibit is in the main building, and being one of the best, attracts a great deal of attention. It will pay all those interested in horse goods or carriages to talk with Messrs. Emerick & Smith.

The street car service to the grounds, by the Consolidated, was rather poor this morning. Cars were a long interval apart and the crowds were entirely too large for them to handle. Every car for the exposition was crowded to its fullest capacity, and passengers were hanging on wherever it was possible to obtain a foothold.

Buckeye paint and varnish show up one of the finest displays in main building, consisting of the products of their own mill. A nice sample of kauri or varnish gum from East Africa which is used in the manufacture of their line of goods is also shown. Buckeye paint and varnish are known to be the best ever made.

Joe G. Gartner & Co., the Cherry street florists have a most beautiful display in main building, which is made up of greenhouse, hot house bedding plants and cut flowers. Their exhibit is attracting a great deal of attention from the lovers of flowers. Gartner & Co. are growers as well as dealers in their line of goods.

Contractor John R. Miller has placed the exposition company and the public under obligations for keeping Washington street open. He is paving that street, but allows it to be used by the street car companies and others, greatly to his inconvenience. It is one of the main thoroughfares to the grounds and if he had been disposed to close it up the public would have been put to considerable trouble in reaching the grounds.

The asylum booth, filled with exquisite fancy work done by the inmates of the asyium, is one of the exhibits that is wonderful to contemplate. This fancy work is for sale, the proceeds of which go for the benefit of the patients, for books, etc. There is not an inmate at the asylum at the present time who does not have sane moments. Two hundred and fifty inmates visited the fair to-day to their apparent enjoyment.

Yesterday, one of the patients, a young lady from Toledo, spent the day at the asylum booth with the attendant. She wrote a letter to THE BEE which she desired to have published. The fellowing is a copy:

Sept. 8, 1891.

MY DEAR:—I was out to see the beautiful fancy articles and to see all the fancy work which is made out here, and to think that I was out walking without Miss B—— with my friend Mr. R——, and bow beautiful everything is, and I enjoyed it all.

Yours, C. S.

Mrs. John D. Leland, who recently removed to San Diego, Cal., on account of her health, is receiving much benefit therefrom. The two sons are with her and they do not expect to return to Toledo. Mr. Leland will visit them frequently, and finds that climate is also beneficial to him.

Rev. Father O'Brien, of Cleveland, is in the city for a brief visit. He is the same genial gentleman he always was, and gives evidence that he is reasonably well treated in the Forest City. Of course, he did not forget to make a call on his friends of the press, and the BEE acknowledges a pleasant visit. The reverend father's many admirers in Toledo hope soon to see him tread the streets of the Future Great regularly as a bona fide resident, instead of in spirit as at present.

A reception was given Dr. and Mrs. Bacon at the Central Congregational church last evening, when a delightful time was enjoyed by the large number present. The ladies who acted on the reception committee were Mrs. D. C. Shaw, Mrs. A. M. Woolson, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Marvin, and Mrs. W. S. Thurstin. Refreshments were also served, those being under the charge of Mrs. Haigh and the Misses McKecknie, Thurstin, Griffis, Crim, Browne, Moderwell, Weir, Raynor and Andrews.

BONDING THE CITY OF TOLEDO.

A meeting of the stockholders of the City of Toledo will be held Friday, for the purpose of issuing $65,000 of bonds, the balance remaining over unplaced. Bonds to the amount of $60,000 were sold when the boat was completed, but there is a balance unpaid on the original cost of the boat, amounting to about $65,000.

ASSIGNING DELEGATES.

The committee on entertainment for the Methodist conference, which convenes at St. John's two weeks from to-day, met last evening at St. Paul's church, and labored until nearly midnight assigning preachers and delegates. Mr. and Mrs. Stevens were voted admirable entertainers.

COME ALONG, GENTLEMEN.

Toledo is acquiring a reputation abroad that will ultimately result in the location of numerous manufacture within her limits. Mr. A. K. Detwiler this morning received a reply to one of the circulars sent out by the Toledo Contract company from the management of a paper pail manufactory, stating that if it were made advantageous their plant would be moved to Toledo. They desire to form a company to increase the capital.

There is in the treasury $1,000. Over $300 were paid to sick and disabled members last year.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The public schools are in session, and are in the usual unsettled condition attending the first week of the term. It is, perhaps, no worse this term than ever before on account of the unusual number of new scholars attending. A great many of these are scholars from parochial schools, and it is a matter of considerable trouble to get them all graded properly.

None of the new buildings have been occupied as yet, but the Raymer building is ready and the first session will be held next Monday. It is expected that the Ontario and Hoag street schools, which are new buildings, will open a week from next Monday.

NORTH BALTIMORE'S STREET FAIR.

On Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week, the North Baltimore Street fair, of which mention was made in the BEE a few days since, will be held, and the thriving little village will put its best foot forward to take care of the visitors. The fair will be out of the ordinary run, being novel and original. Three thousand dollars will be offered in premiums. A purse of $250 has been provided for bands, $75 to the swiftest hose company, and $50 to the best uniformed civic society of not less 20 persons. The streets will be illuminated in the evening, the glass factories will be in full blast, and altogether the attractions will be worthy of witnessing. The enterprise of the people of North Baltimore is to be commended, and Toledoans can afford to show appreciation of the efforts of her neighbor.

SOCIAL STATISTICS.

The county auditor this morning forwarded to the secretary of State, the following statistics relative to new structures erected in Lucas county within the year ending April 12:

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Price Current for Produce and Other Articles.

The market quotations in the BEE are compiled from United Press special dispatches and from reports received by the Toledo Produce Exchange, and specially arranged by Mr. Denison E. Smith, secretary of the Exchange.

OFFICE OF THE TOLEDO BEE, TOLEDO, O., Sept. 9.

NOTICE—This Board will hold no Session on Thursday next, on account of the Exposition.

London Wheat market weaker, neglected and 3d lower on winter. Corn quiet, weaker. Liverpool wheat weak and 1d lower. Corn firm, demand light.

The receipts of wheat at seven principal western points to-day are 1,784,571 bu, compared with 283,243 bu on the same day last year.

California wheat movement.—The receipts at San Francisco in the week ending September 2 equaled 487,990 bu of wheat and 40,228 bbls of flour. The exports were very light, 203,443 bu of wheat and 20, 514 bbls flour.

Business failures in the United States and Canada for the week were 217, against 226 the previous week, and 203 for the corresponding week in 1890.

The New York Financial Chronicle reports gross earnings of 87 roads forthird week in August gained $347,084 or 3 per cent. Nine roads for fourth week gained $148,690 or 347 per cent.

Wabash Railway Election.—O. D. Ashley, Edgar T. Welles, Cyrus J. Lawrence, Sidney Dillon, George J. Gould, John T. Terry, Thomas H. Hubbard, Russell Sage, of New York; Charles M. Hayes and Jas. F. Howe, of St. Louis; Henry K. McHarg, Stamford, Conn.; S. C. Reynolds, Toledo, O.; James F. Joy, Detroit, Mich.

The annual report of President Ashley shows the following: The road earned in the year $13,028,278. Operating expenses $9,565,223, or more than 73 per cent., which is awfully steep.

The receipts of wheat to-day at seven principal western points are 1,491,328 bu in excess of the corresponding Tuesday in 1890. The excess in receipts above those of last week are from Minneapolis and Duluth, and also at Chicago. Some of the latter may be from re-shipments at Minneapolis and Kansas City to that extent are duplicated.

The export clearances yesterday from three Atlantic ports were 622,247 bu, with flour to make an aggregate of 750,000 bu.

Russian Wheat.

In the concensus portion of Russia the crops are said to be good, and offers are made to lend to the impoverished portion of that country with the guaranty of the government, large quantities of bread stuffs, to be returned from the next harvest. Transportation rates, it is said, have been reduced between the provinces with good crops to those in suffering, 50 per cent.

English markets as quoted herein are dull, weak and lower for wheat, and dull for corn.

The Visible Supply.

The visible supply of wheat in 1890, September 6, was 17,500,558 bus. Last Saturday 19,863,144 bus. The difference is 2,362,606 bus. In 1890 it was a short crop with a movement of wheat about 33 per cent. of this year. Is that condition a sufficient one to produce pale-faced dealers.

Ocean Stock.

Last Monday the ocean stock of wheat for the United Kingdom was 15,224,000 bu. In the corresponding week in 1890 the quantity was 19,816,000 bu. Difference 4,592,000 bu. The entire quantity on the ocean for the United Kingdom is not equal to four weeks' consumption, and much of it is claimed by English authorities, to be sold to the continent. Again, a good portion of the quantity may not arrive before January. Is that a bearish condition? and yet we are not happy if we do not drop our prices four or five cents every time England leaves our markets. The sence of the bears to-day is, that wheat may decline to 85c, and it will be easy enough to do it if they sell and sell, and no one has the sand to stand by the market.

Again our markets for wheat are lower. The receipts are the strong point with dealers, and the aggregate discourages them. Corn has also been weak and somewhat cheaper.

In New York September wheat closed 2⅝c and December 2¼c lower. September corn 1¼c and October 2¾c lower. In Chicago December wheat closed 3c lower. September corn 3½c and October 3¾c lower.

In Toledo.

Wheat has gradually declined with light business, closing excited and weak at 4c decline for cash. Cash sales at 95¾c to 93¾c at close; September opened on and after the call at 96c, closing at 93¾c asked; October, 1@1¼c over September. December started on call at $1 00¼, selling down to $1 00. After call from $1 00@1 00⅜@98¾c at close. May 6c@6¼ over December.

No 3 soft, sales at 93@92c, about 2¼c under No. 2; No. 4 soft, sale at 86c, and rejected No. 1 at 82c and No. 2 at 75c.

Corn, quiet; sales of No. 2 at 66c, and No. 4 at 63c; futures normal.

Oats easier without sales. Rye for September at 90¾@91c; October at 91¼c and cash at 91c and 90½ to arrive. Clover seed active and lower; cash prime, September, October and December sales at $4 75 and No 2 at $4 50@4 55; October opened at close at $4 67½.

Wheat Quotations.

The Toledo Produce Exchange desires by this method to express dissatisfaction with the daily quotations of wheat in the London and Liverpool markets, as reported by the Western Union Telegraph company. There seems to be discrepances and inconsistencies, which need interpretation.

As examples we note. London recently quotes California, nearly due 43s 6d, and red winter No. 2 to No. 1 for present and following months, 40s 6d. The time of these deliveries, it will be seen, is on a parity, while in the price there is a disparity of 15c bu. In Liverpool, California spot wheat is quoted, outside, at 8s 11¼d, winter red at 8s 2d.

Is there a difference in these wheats for cash of 11c per bu. If only a difference of 11c per bu in Liverpool, why 15c in London. There is a difference in favor of London on near by delivery of winter wheat, and the same wheat for cash in Liverpool of 4c per bu. American red winter wheat is described as No 1 to 2. Is the wheat graded by public inspection? If not, how are these grades arrived at? Is it New York or Baltimore mixed wheat? This exchange does not know what is represented by the cable dispatches which they pay for.

Again American No 1 and No 2 spring wheat cash is quoted at 81¾@91c, which is 15c above American red winter. What kind of spring wheat is thus quoted? If Minnesota, or Chicago, it is cheaper to use such a term. Therefore be it

Resolved. That this exchange believes the London and Liverpool markets are quoted after the same form as twenty years ago—that the quotations do not so describe the grain as to make them intelligible, and that the telegraph and cable company are respectfully requested to revise their system, that the daily report of prices may be more consistant and better understood.

The prohibition party will cut no figure in Pennsylvania this year with apples selling at eight cents a bushel and cider at five cents a gallon.

A New York journal claims that New York state has more Indians than either Kansas, Nebraska or Wyoming. Probably the writer counted in the Tammany braves and sachems.

The 4 1-2 per cent. bonds received at the treasury yesterday for continuance at 2 per cent. amounted to $12,500; the same bonds sent in for redemption amounted to $107,500. Secretary Foster's extension scheme doesn't pan out well.

Some more of the Keystone bank small fry have been arrested, two clerks charged with making false entries. The man who had big transactions with the bank which would not bear investigation, and the nature of which he forgot, is still at large.

Collector Fassett of the New York custom house and the postmaster of New York City have gone to the assistance of Boss Platt in manipulating the republican state convention. Some more snivel service reform, of the kind palatable to the Pecksniffian president.

Candidate McKinley quotes from a dry goods advertisement to show how cheap a suit of men's clothes can be bought—under the tariff. But he carefully refrains from quoting from the Dry Goods Economist which proves by analysis that 72 per cent. of the suit is shoddy; shoddy made out of vile and disease-impregnated rags; shoddy imported—under the tariff, and used as a substitute for good, home-grown wool.

The congressional Chilian envoys in this country have had a meeting in Washington. They have been unofficially informed that Minister Egan has been cabled to recognize the congressional junta as the government of Chili, and they now await the action of the state department in the Itata affair. If Secretary Blaine is really the jingo secretary he is given out to be, he will take the next train from Bar Harbor for Washington. Our diplomatic relations with Chili are really very mixed.

In a state where the tariff is not just now the issue, because there is no election on, and therefore the republican editors have not found it necessary to cut off their supply of tariff primer literature, one of the organs of protection asks: "What would the American Saturday night be without the tariff?" The Philadelphia Record finds this an easy question to answer, and answers it as follows:

It would be a night when the tired citizen could pull off his untaxed coat, hat, vest, breeches and undergarments, robe himself in an untaxed nightshirt, gather about him an untaxed blanket and sleep the sleep of the just. Heaven speed the time!

The announcement that President Harrison has tendered the portfolio of war to Stephen B. Elkins must be confirmed before it can be believed. We are slow to think that any president of the United States could put such a rascal in his cabinet, even one who owes his presidency to the rascal's rascality. If it be true the man who shames the nation by making the appointment should be and will be retired to private life at the earliest opportunity. If the Harrison administration had been in every other particular clean and satisfactory, which it has not, it would deserve and receive everlasting condemnation for this outrageous act. President Harrison had better think twice before he honors Blocks-of-Five Dudley to this extent.

The Marquis of Lorne, Queen Victoria's son-in-law, has a weakness for letters and considering the quality of his output it is a very serious weakness indeed. His latest contribution to literature is a magazine article on the failure of Germany to establish colonies. We may leave it to the statesmen of that empire to thank the Marquis for his criticisms, but when it comes to the advice he gives, which is that Germany shall seize and colonize the disintegrating Argentine republic, Americans have something to say. It will be well for the Marquis to read up on the Monroe doctrine, enunciated in 1823, and faithfully upheld by the United States of America ever since. "We owe it to candor and to the amiable relations existing between the United States and the allied powers to declare that we should consider any attempt upon their part to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety." In other and less diplomatic language, "America for Americans." European nations may extend their colonization schemes over Asia, Africa, and the seas, but they must keep hands off from North and South America, notwithstanding the advice Son-in-law Lorne offers Germany.

A New York Times correspondent, who has been engaged in a private investigation tour in parts of Russia, has returned to more civilized lands, loaded with information which is momentous if in any degree true. He concludes from what he has seen and heard that the persecution and expulsion of the Hebrews is only the overture to a Pan-Slavist program, a general movement to banish from Russia all foreign and non-orthodox people, of whatever nativity. He says:

Within the next six months several hundred thousand German, English and other alien merchants inside the empire will find themselves in the position now occupied by the unhappy Jews. When this comes there is at least a chance that the rest of Europe will interfere and make an effort to set some bounds to the savage excesses of the Pan-Slavism run mad.

In regard to Russian crops he says, and in this is markedly shown how that country has cursed itself in banishing its Hebrew subjects:

With a blind stupidity Russia has busied herself in destroying her most active mercantile class just at the time when its help was most sorely needed to keep the country going at all.

There has been a great and calamitous failure of the crops in Russia this year, as the world already knows. What the world does not know, and what the authorities at St. Petersburg seem themselves only dimly to grasp, is that a very considerable proportion of the breadstuffs crop which did survive hostile frosts and droughts, and which figures in the estimates of the yield, has not been harvested at all, but lies rotten now on the vast steppes of the corn belt.

THE TRADES UNION TOAST.

Grave significance attaches to the refusal of the Trades congress, now in session at Newcastle, England, to allow the health of the Prince of Wales, or of any other member of the royal family except the queen, to be drunk at their banquet. There are 1,500,000 of the skilled and unskilled workmen of Great Britain represented in this "trades' parliament," and the delegates who compose the body are the ablest thinkers and most trusted leaders of the workmen.

It has been said the average Englishman likes his prince to be "a little wicked," and it is probable these trades unionists are average Englishmen, and in their discussion and decision were not influenced by the "non-conformist conscience." They decline to approve the course of the Prince of Wales, and to express loyalty to any and all of the scions of the queen's house, not because of what these royal highnesses do, but because they, the people, have come to see that they foot the bills. And they see no reason for paying high for royalty that does nothing for them.

This is a great deal more dangerous attitude toward the crown and as regards the perpetuity of the monarchial form of government than if the hostility of the people were expressed toward any one individual prince. At the banquet with which the congress will close, unless the decision of the delegates be reversed the time-honored toast of "The queen and the royal family" will not be given. Instead of that the delegates will drink to "The queen and the country."

All of which means that when Queen Victoria shall have been gathered to her forefathers, and Albert Edward would reign in her stead, he may find himself the head of a people the majority of whom have outgrown the need of a king, a crown and a throne.

WHERE IS THE HONESTY?

McKinley is mouthing a good deal about an "honest dollar;" but he hasn't a word to say about an honest recompense to the labor that produces the wealth of the country. Under his system of "protection" the dollar represents capital hogs the lion's share of profits, and leaves labor a mere subsistence. Where is the "honesty" in that kind of a dollar?—Lima Times.

WAY IT STANDS.

It is certain that congress will radically modify the McKinley bill in many important particulars and for all time, for the people will never again elect a high tariff house. But the senate can block the way of general tariff legislation and there remains at the white house the possible veto of an avowed devotee of protection. —Chicago Herald.

UNLIKE OUR FERTILE SOIL.

The Canadian tariff averages about 40 per cent. The result is the population has only increased 11 per cent. in 10 years. The ice-bound fields of that region will not force prosperity, in spite of a high tariff, as the fertile soil of America does.—Springfield Democrat.

PRETTY TALL TALK.

Mr. McKinley says he is anxious for Gov. Campbell to get well, because "there is not much glory in whipping a sick man." This is pretty tall talk for a man who is exerting his utmost energies in trying to dodge an encounter with the Ohio sheep.—St. Louis Republic.

HE IS HANDICAPPED.

Under the wise, economical administration of the democratic party, Secretary Foster might appear a first-class secretary of the treasury; but no financier can do much toward keeping up with republican incompetence and extravagance.—Courier Journal.

MADE HIM QUIT.

John Sherman once advocated an income tax till the tariff barons and Wall street sharks made him quit. Now the democrats want an income tax so to reach the rich monopolists and to pay the soldiers their pensions.—Columbus Post.

WITH A GRAIN OF SALT.

The republicans are trying to sweeten the bitter pill of McKinleyism with free sugar, but the people are inclined to take their statements with a grain of salt.—Chicago Times.

DUE TO UNCLE JERRY.

We all admire William Walter Phelps' beautiful bangs, but to Uncle Jerry Rusk is due the credit of pushing the American pig into Germany.—Washington Post.

WILL GRIND SMALL.

Mr. Mills will go to Ohio this week to take part in the present campaign. He will grind the republican vote "exceedingly small."—New Orleans Delta.

DO NOT STATE.

The trouble with Secretary Foster's debt statement is, as the New York World points out, that they do not state. —Indianapolis Sentinel.

ACCORDING TO THE FAITH.

Large crops mean little mortgages, blessings though those burdens be according to the faith as it is in McKinley. —N. Y. World.

ANSWER UP.

Is there anybody quite sure that John Seitz will not be the next governor of Ohio?—Cincinnati Post.

RIGHT HERE IN TOLEDO,

Are the Iniquitous Effects Of the Tariff Felt.

A Singular Illustration Crops Out in Court.

George Harriott, of the Gendron Iron Wheel Co., Obliged to Leave 300 Prizes Behind Him in England—Barred Out of the League.

A singular fact illustrating the iniquitous and inqurious results of the high protective tariff system came to light indirectly in a case now pending in the Common Pleas Court of Lucas County. It also brought to light another important fact not generally known—namely, Toledo possesses one of the champions, if not the champion, bicycle riders of the world.

The case is that of the Lozier & Yost company vs. Gendron Iron Wheel company, and the young man whose evidence proves the points alluded to is Mr. George Harriott, superintendent of the Bicycle department of the Gendron company.

Mr. Harriott testifies that he was the possessor of over 350 first-class prizes valued at £350 ($1,750) obtained at meetings in England of bicycle racers. He testifies further that owing to the excessive tariff on gold, etc., averaging about 35 per cent., he was obliged to relinquish the cherished idea of bringing them with him to this country three years ago.

"What did you do with your prizes?" a Bee asked Mr. Harriott yesterday.

"Well, I sold some and distributed others among my friends. It would have cost me close on to $500 to have brought them with me, and $500 is a mighty big sum to an English workingman."

"Have you entered any contests in this country?"

"No, the United States Wheeling League has barred me out on the ground that I am a professional."

"Have you ever entered in a professional race?"

"Never. They claim that I paced once with a professional in England, but it is only partially true. Mr. Skinger, a representative of the League, was in Toledo a few days ago, and I presented my case to him."

"Are you desirous of joining the League?"

"Why, yes. I don't see why they bar me. I love bicycling for the sport there is in it, and I think my knowledge of English bicycling tactics would rather be beneficial than otherwise."

Mr. Harriott lives at 1027 Erie street, and is a bright, hustling young Englishman. He is an expert on all matters pertaining to his profession and an A 1 mechanic.

NEWSPAPER CHANGE.

Managing Editor McKean, of the Philadelphia "Ledger," Retires.

Philadelphia, Sept. 9.—To-day Wm. V. McKean, for more than twenty-six years the managing editor of the Public Ledger, retired, and was succeeded by L. Clarke Davis. Mr. McKean will continue on the staff of the Ledger at full pay and will write occasional editorials, but will be relieved from the responsibility of managing the business of the journal and voicing its sentiments.

The announcement is made that George W. Childs will himself hereafter be editor-in-chief.

Mr. McKean, who was for many years connected with the Inquirer, became managing editor of the Ledger soon after its purchase by Mr. Childs. He was incessant in his labors and very rarely took a vacation. With his advancing years Mr. McKean was some time ago advised to take a rest by an extended trip to Europe, but declined.

Mr. Davis has been connected with the Ledger for about three years. He was formerly managing editor of the Inquirer and editorial writer for the Evening Telegraph. He is a brilliant journalist, fully adapted to all-round newspaper work.

THE MEXICAN TARIFF.

Many Changes Have Been Made on Goods.

Reductions on Numerous Items and Increases On Others

City of Mexico, Sept. 9.—The new Mexican tariff has finally made its appearance in the Diaro Official, but has not been published in book form. One of the most notable features of the law is its great definiteness. There have been 250 classes of merchandise added to the increased list. The free list retains agricultural implements, wires, machinery, explosives, iron pipe, sheet tin.

Precious stones are taxed from $1 to $5 per carat. Raw cotton, cotton cloth, grain and carriages are unchanged.

Threads, underwear, woolen carpets, cloths, clothing, gloves and fringes are slightly reduced. Firearms are somewhat increased. The tax on the following articles have been reduced:

Sulphuric and muriatic acids to 3c. Liquors in wood from 40 to 30. Wine, 12 to 10. Beer to 8c. Common paper, 10c to 8c. Brown wrapping paper to 8c. Envelopes 30c to 25c. Bristol board to 25c. Pasteboard to 25c. Wall paper to 20c. Fixed oil not specified, 50c to 20c. Lubricating oils to 5c. Unfinished furniture, 15c to 8c. Tools, 10c to 5c. Steel ingots, 5c to 3c. Angle iron to 3c. Phosphorous, 75 to 50. The tax on the following articles have been increased: Matches from $1.25 to $1.50. Playing cards to $1.60. Printed monograms, tickets, etc., to $1. Preserved fruits, 50 to 75. Virginia leaf tobacco, 18 to 25c. Crude petroleum, 1c to 2c. Finished furniture, 20 to 10. Jewelry (according to class) 50c to 75c. Rubber cloth and clothing, 80c to $2. Bar iron, 5c to 10c. Manufactures of iron not otherwise specified, 20c to 25c. In any case legal weight is substituted for gross weight, that is, the goods do not have to pay duty on the box or barrels containing them.

THE NEWS FROM LIMA.

A Manager Makes Off With Some Cash.

Lake Erie & Western Switchmen go Out on a Strike—General Mention.

Lima, O., Sept. 9.—(Special)—Fred Bennet, manager for John Blee's branch shoe store, has turned up missing, together with the cash receipts for several weeks' sales, amounting to hundreds of dollars.

Bennet is thought to be in Virginia.

The night switchmen on the L. E. & W. railroad at this point went out on a strike last night, because one crew was ordered off by Trainmaster Cook on account of a slack in the work.

The police were called upon to prevent a disturbance at one time. No effort will now be made to get out trains until General Manager Bradberry is heard from.

Harry Everett, aged 7, was accidentally pushed into a tub of boiling water yesterday afternoon. His back and hips were literally cooked and it is thought he cannot recover.

TOLEDO'S PUSH

Commented On by a Clevelander Visiting in the City.

John Ehrhardt, of the Cleveland cable street car company, was in the city this morning. It is the first time Mr. Ehrhardt has been in the city for a year, and he expressed considerable surprise at the growth and improvement in Toledo in that time. In conversation with a BEE he said:

"I noticed a great change in your street car system and the improvement is apparent everywhere. The horse and old bob-tail car must give way to progress and enterprise. Rapid transit is the only mode of transportation that is speedy enough for the business man of the present day. I often heard of Toledo's electric street railway system, but I had no idea that the horse car had been so near weeded out. They are being shelved in Cleveland very rapidly, and within another year the street car horse will be thoroughly emancipated in Cleveland forever. The cable system has only been in operation since January, but is meeting with general approval, and there is no doubt now but what the system is a success in every respect."

ACCUSED HIM OF CHEATING

And He Slapped Her In the Face.

A Divorce Suit Followed and Now a Big Damage Suit is on the Docket.

Coshocton, O., Sept. 9.—A highly sensational and interesting trial is now in progress before the common pleas court of this district, Judge Nicholas on the bench.

Mrs. Zilpha M. Wood, a handsome and petite young woman, has sued her father and mother-in-law, Harry H. Wood, and Emily Wood, for $10,000 for the alienation of her husband's affections.

The defendants are wealthy residents of this county and well able to pay the amount demanded if awarded to her by the court.

Mrs. Wood was divorced from her husband, Jay Wood, some months since on account of cruelty and incompatibility of temper. She has been the principal witness examined and has occupied the stand almost the entire day.

She testifies, among other things, that on one occasion her husband knocked her down for playing croquet on Sunday, although he frequently indulged in old sledge, euchre, and other games himself on the same day; also that while playing euchre with him on another occasion he slapped her in the face some two or three times because she accused him of cheating.

The trial, it is thought, will be protracted and occupy many days.

RED MEN IM SESSION.

The Great Council Meets in Cleveland.

Reports From Officers Show the Order to be in a Very Flourishing Condition.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 9.—The great council of the Improved Order of Red Men began its fifty-fifth annual session yesterday at the Hollenden hotel. About one hundred delegates were present, besides a large number of visitors from local councils.

The meeting was called to order by Charles L. Young, of Ohio. Mayor Rose welcomed the visitors to Cleveland, the response being made by Charles H. Litchman of Massachusetts, formerly general secretary of the Knights of Labor.

O. H. Chaney, the great sachem of Ohio, spoke next. He said there were 5,000 Red Men and 1,000 members of the Order of Pocahantas in Ohio. He welcomed the delegates to the state.

Grand Incohence Thomas K. Donnelly of Philadelphia, also spoke, reviewing the work done by the order. The secret business session of the order then began. In the afternoon the visitors were taken to various points of interest in carriages.

The "long talk" of Great Incohence Donnelly showed that the total membership of the order in the country is 108,444, a gain of 10,000 during the past year. The financial statement shows that the receipts during the year of all the tribes amount to $958,520.46, the total wealth of the order being $1,260,-034.54. There was paid during the year $314,980.83 for the relief of members, and $419,229.61 for other expenses.

The order of Pocahontas reports 194 councils, with a membership of 11,168, an increase for the year of 2,844. For sick benefits, $5,318.70 had been expended. Receipts for the year were $41,-769.49; balance on hand, $22,929.80.

WE WANT NO KINGS.

[A poem which might be aptly dedicated to America's tariff barons.]

Go where I will, I feel no sound
Like sullen thunder shake the ground.

And as I listen, half in fear,
The sound swells louder and more near.

A sound of protest from the throngs
Grown weary from their cruel wrongs.

Again I listen, thrilled and stirred,
I catch its purport word for word,

As loud and louder yet it rings—
"We want no Kings, we want no Kings!"

The world has grown too wise and old
For monarchs with their crowns of gold.

And commerce has too many ports
For noblemen to mince through Courts.

Humanity has grown too wide
To let us now for Queens provide.

Too weighty issues are at hand
To maintain Princes in the land.

And Thought has grown too bold and free,
To let us longer bend the knee.

To any man, unless he fights
For Justice, Truth and common rights.

The rights of labor to its hire—
The rights of toilers to aspire

To something better than befalls
The burdened oxen in their stalls;

The right of all paid slaves to rise
Against self-crowned Monopolies

That rob the tiller of the soil
Of honest proceeds of his toil!

That steal the poor man's flour and sack
And grind him till he buys them back

At twice their value. Down, we say,
With these false Kings who rule to-day.

With Freedom's voice the Welkin rings:
"We want no Kings, we want no Kings!"

—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

IN DEFENSE OF KANSAS.

Calamity Peffer Gets Some Hard Knocks.

Republicans Trying to Gain Lost Ground.

The Publication of the True State of Affairs Have Lost Them Much Valuable Ground.

Topeka, Ks., Sept. 9.—The following circular, signed by O. H. Bentley, F. P. Harkness, A. H. Ellis, C. H. Kimball, T. P. Moore, George W. Martin, James A. Troutman, S. B. Bradford, and H. B. Kelly, was issued yesterday:

"At the recent state convention of republican leagues the undersigned were appointed a committee to prepare an address, designed especially to refute the slanders upon the state of Kansas by the advocates of the people's party.

"These defamers of the state that protects and cares for them, are persistent in the charge that Kansas, under successive republican administrations, has been reduced to a beggarly condition. The atrocious crime of being a state of borrowers, we shall neither attempt to palliate nor deny. Most of our people came to Kansas with small means, but with a large share of that robust energy that has always dominated the state, and in a quarter of a century have achieved wonderful material results.

"Our debts stand for our investments, and not for our losses. They represent our enterprise, and not our misfortune; our property, and not our poverty. They will be paid, to the last penny, in the legal currency of the country—not a coin clipped, not a dollar depreciated.

"Kansas is emerging from an era of general depression that is not limited to state lines, nor confined to the jurisdiction of republican administrations. Kansas has shared misfortunes and endured calamities that are the common heritage of the human race, but she is neither bankrupt nor discouraged. One of the newest states in settlement, she is one of the foremost in the magnitude of her wealth and fertility of her resources.

"Kansas has been under the uninterrupted control of the republican party from the date of its admission as a state, and an imperial commonwealth has been developed. A magnificent capitol building, and charitable institutions, with superb equipage, aggregating in cost $6,-000,000, have been built and paid for, and the state has not lost a dollar by defalcation or the dishonesty of public officials.

"The total assessed valuation of property in the state is $348,000,000, which represents an actual valuation of the $1,392,000,000. The assessed valuation of the state is five times as great as that of Florida or Delaware, three times that of South Carolina, double that of Alabama, Arkansas, or Mississippi; $40,000,000 greater than Maine, $90,-000,000 more than New Hampshire, $187,000,000 more than Vermont, and only $10,000,000 below the old and wealthy state of Connecticut.

"Kansas was the thirty-fourth state admitted into the union, but now ranks nineteenth in population, and eighteenth in wealth. The wealth of the United States, during the last decade increased 43 per cent.; that of Kansas 80 per cent., nearly double the general average.

"Kansas is the second state in the union in railway mileage, having an aggregate of 8,900 miles.

"The school property of the state is valued at $10,617,149. Free schools are maintained from eight to nine months each year. In addition to the common schools the state has a university, a normal school, an agricultural college—all justly celebrated institutions of learning.

"There are in the state 2,339 church edifices costing $8,801,870. From 1880 to 1890 there was an increase in the church and school property of the state of over twelve and a half million dollars.

"A beneficent system of education has been fostered by the republican party, and to-day there is a greater diffusion of popular education, and a smaller percentage of illiteracy and crime, in Kansas, than in any other organized community upon the face of the globe. In all that pertains to a strong and vigorous state, the history of civil society furnishes no parallel to Kansas.

"Official reports from 60 counties of the state show that during the last three months there was a net reduction in the mortgage indebtedness of those counties of one and a half million dollars. Assuming that there was a proportionate reduction in the remaining 46 counties, the total diminution of the mortgage debt of the state would approximate $2,250,000, and this was during that summer, before the farmers began to realize on this year's crop. Our wheat crop this year of 55,000,000 bushels at current prices is worth $44,000,-000. One-fourth of this is ample for home use, leaving $33,000,000 to add to our investments, or to pay our debts. Our surplus corn will bring us $20,000,-000, oats $2,000,000, and other farm products $11,000,000.

"We can and will sell this year $12,-000,000 worth of horses and $25,000,000 worth of cattle and hogs. After supplying themselves and paying their annual expense bills, the farmers of Kansas will have $104,000,000 as the net result of a single year's work. Some of this large profit will be added to our pemanent capital, but most of it will be employed in liquidating indebtedness. The wandering vagabonds who have joined the alliance for political purposes only, and who are trying to make a living by the sweat of their jaws, instead of honest toil, will, of course fail to pay their debts; but there is a resolute purpose all over this state to pay, as rapidly as possible, all the debts incurred during our period of agricultural development. The balance of trade is so largely in our favor that the early extinguishment of all our debts is certain. It should be understood abroad as it is known at home, that the only advocates of repudiation, either by intrigue or artifice, are adherents of the people's party.

"An epidemic of unreason swept over the state last fall, and many of our people were inoculated with the pestilence. Quarantine has been established and is rigidly maintained. The epidemic is not spreading, and many of the original victims are convalescent.

"Reports that are entirely trustworthy indicate the rapid decline and certain death of the alliance as a political party.

"A marked decrease in the vote of that party is sure to be recorded in November.

"The new party, under the seductive leadership of demagogues, who magnify the farmers' misfortunes and belittle their resources, obtained control of the lower house of our last legislature. Its conspicuous failure as a law-making body filled the more sensible members of the alliance with chagrin, and they will embrace the first opportunity offered to reinstate themselves in the republican party.

"Kansas is marvelous in its history, matchless in its resources, and magnificent in its achievements, and the party that maligns the state and dishonors itself is already struck with the blight of death."

WOMEN AT THE POLLS.

Interesting Election Held in Michigan.

Husband, Wife and Daughter go Together to Cast Their Ballots.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 9.—More than usual interest was manifested in the school election here Monday, owing to complications growing out of the labor difficulties early in the season.

After participating in the labor parade, many of the workmen went to the polls with their wives and daughters and voting became a family affair.

The vote polled was the largest in years, but the chief interest centered in the wards where women candidates were in the field.

In the Fourth the candidates were Fred L. Clark, who managed the street car strike on behalf of the company and against whom the feeling was very bitter in labor circles.

His opponent was Mrs. Emma Coppens, and both sides worked hard for votes. Clark was elected by a plurality of over 100 in a total of over 1,300.

In the Eighth, Mrs. Goodrich was defeated by her male opponent, while in the Ninth the women carried the day, electing Mrs. Andrews by a plurality of 14. Mrs. Andrews will be the only woman on the board.

Battle Creek, Mich., Sept. 9.—The election here was exciting. For the first time two women were candidates and both were elected by the largest vote ever polled. Hundreds of the most prominent ladies in the city visited the polls and cast their first ballots.

MURDERED THE INSANE.

Such is the Report of the Investigating Committee.

Horrible State of Affairs Found to Exist in a Pennsylvania Asylum.

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 9.—Additional papers in connection with the state insane asylum in this city were given out by the governor yesterday. The papers which are the reports of the investigating committee, conclude as follows:

"Every allowance has been made for possible exaggerations and misstatements The committe on lunacy find upon careful consideration of the evidence, that the medical control of the hospital is lax and insufficient, that the regulations imposed by the lunacy laws have been repeatedly violated and set at naught, that barbarous and cruel practice on patients by attendants have gone unreported and that insufficient care has been bestowed in the selection and training of attendants in their responsible duties.

The American Association to be Recognized.

In the Make-up Next Year Both Columbus and Louisville Will Be Left Out.

Baltimore, Sept. 9.—An officer of the Milwaukee club said to a United Press representative last night that the association next year will include Baltimore, Philadelphia, Washington, Boston, Chicago Milwaukee, Cincinnati and St. Louis. Louisville and Columbus are to be dropped. He states that there will be a great scramble for players this winter and large financial inducements will be offered to the stars of the profession.

PERSONAL AND TO THE POINT.

To the Editor:—For some reason, which I fail to understand, the fire of the Commercial is turned in my direction, and I am accused of suppressing news which might be, and was, obtained as a reporter, at the meetings of the board of natural gas trustees. I affirm that every item of news I ever obtained as a reporter was faithfully reported to my employers. Further, the only persons who ever sought my services to betray the trustees were the Commercial people, who offered a bribe if I would give them duplicate copies of my reports. Further, I have reason to believe the man whom I recommended for office, which circumstance the Commercial refers to, was not appointed, but is now employed by the Commercial to surreptitiously obtain news from the meetings of the board for publication in the Commercial.

WITH FEARFUL FORCE

Locomotive Boiler Explosion This Morning.

Three Men Instantly Killed and a Number of Passengers Badly Injured.

Oyster Bay, L. I., Sept. 9.—The boiler of the locomotive of the regular passenger train on the Long Island railway scheduled to leave here at 7:08 exploded this morning with terrific force while the train was standing at the station.

Engineer Donaldson, Fireman Dickinson and Brakeman Mahoney were instantly killed, their bodies being thrown some distance and horribly mutilated.

The locomotive was completely wrecked.

There were a large number of passengers on board the train, but so far as known none were seriously hurt. The windows of the cars were shattered and some of the passengers thrown on the floor, receiving slight cuts and bruises, besides being badly shaken up.

The train was known as No. 6 and usually carried residents of Oyster Bay who have to attend to business in New York every day.

Conductor Jones, who was standing near the locomotive at the time of the explosion, was thrown several yards and badly scalded. His condition is critical.

It is supposed that low water caused the explosion. The engine was inspected but a short time ago.

TO KILL HIS BROTHER-IN-LAW.

Boston, Sept. 9.—John Cotter, was arrested in this city last night charged with conspiring to kill his brother-in-law, Luther Rowe, a prominent real estate dealer.

Cotter took a man named Wm. Butler in his confidence and the latter reported the matter to Mr. Rowe. Rowe informed the police who arrested Cotter. Cotter was loaded down with weapons when taken into custody. He claims that Rowe swindled him out of a large amount of property. Cotter tried to assassinate Rowe once before and served two years for the crime.

AMERICAN WHEELMEN

The Constitutional Convention in Hartford.

The Much Disputed Question of What Constitutes an Amateur Finally Settled.

Hartford Conn., Sept. 9.—The constitutional convention of the league of American Wheelmen was held at Allyn hotel last night. The constitution of the organization was changed in many minor points.

The motion of Charles Lacomb, of Brooklyn, providing that any club with 75 per cent. of its members being league members can become a league club and receive privileges accorded the league clubs with that number, was passed.

The following definition of an amateur was adopted: "An amateur is one who has not engaged in, nor assisted in nor taught cycling or any other recognized athletic exercise for money or other remuneration, not knowingly competed with or against a professional for a prize of any description; or one after having forfeited the amateur status has had the same restored by a competent authority having jurisdiction over the sport.

A cyclist ceases to be an amateur by engaging in cycling or other recognized athletic exercises or personally teaching, training or coaching any person therein, either as a means of obtaining a livelihood or for a wager, money prize, or gate money; competing with a professional or making pace for or having the pace made by such in public or for a prize; selling, pawning or otherwise turning into cash or realizing upon any prize won by him.

WITH A HUMAN CARGO.

South Sea Islanders Bound for Mexican Territory.

San Francisco, Sept. 9.—The brig Tahiti, which put into Drake's bay Saturday in distress left yesterday for San Benito, Mexico, with her human cargo of South sea islanders.

The custom officials were in doubt as to the course they should pursue in the matter, but as the vessel was driven upon the coast by stress of weather and had not intended to enter American waters they decided to take no action in the matter.

Capt. Ferguson, who is a part owner of the vessel, states that he is acting as an authorized agent of the Mexican government to assist emigration, and that the terms of the contract, which were explained to all natives before signing, provide that they shall work three years for $8 per month, shall be given free passage to and from the islands and shall be given food, clothing and a house and tract of land.

Ferguson says Consular Agent Rick at the Gilbert islands examined the natives and certified to the passen

IT SEEMS BUT YESTERDAY.

It seems but yesterday that May
Tripped lightly past, nor paused to stay
A moment longer than 'twould take
To set her signet near and far,
In field and lane—the daisies' star;
To set the grasses all ashake;
To kiss the world into a blush
Of brier rose, pink and plush,
For summer's sake.

It seems but yesterday that June
Came piping sweet a medley tune,
Whereto the robin and the thrush
Lent each his trilling throat, the while
The locust there beside the stile,
Deep hid in tangled weed and brush
Sprung out the season's skein of heat,
With now a "whir" of shuttle fleet,
And now a hush.

It seems but yesterday and yet
To-day I find my garden set
In silver, and the roisterer wind
Made bold to pluck me by the gown.
What time I wandered hand in hand down
The paths, to see if left behind
Was one last rose that I might press
Against my withered cheek and less
Feel time unkind.

A marvellous illustration of the patience of the Chinese is found in the salt mines in central China. News of a romantic marriage comes from Georgia. Ten years ago the couple, then only boy and girl, were married, but their folks separated them, the bride being sent away. Considering the age and infirmities of the members of the Grand Army of the Republic, the deaths in their ranks are not so numerous as it might be supposed they would be. A roll of 5,530 deaths in a year out of a total membership of 444,307, is only about one-half the annual death rate of Boston, where, with a population of 448,000, there were 10,181 deaths last year. It seems incredible that the Grand Army death statistics can be anywhere near correct, though there is no apparent reason why they should not be at least approximately so.

GERMANY'S LIQUOR CURSE

A Measure to Control Drinking Resorts

Hoped to Lessen the Number of Crimes.

Interesting Statistics Showing the Evil Effects of the Abuse of Intoxicating Spirits.

Berlin, Sept. 9.—The proposed new law against the abuse of spirituous liquors was published in the Reichsanzeiger to-day. It contains 23 paragraphs. Following are its principal provisions:

While the trade law formerly left it to the different federal governments to grant licenses, the law is now so changed as to allow of the granting of a license only in retail liquor shop or for a saloon. The need of such a retail place or saloon must be shown. A license will be refused to anyone of immoral character or to people who may be suspected of using the liquor business as a cloak for debauchery, gambling, prostitution, etc. If the location—as, for instance, near a church—appears undesirable, the license can also be refused.

Retailers are all dealers who sell in quantities of less than fifty litres, and this may be extended to cover all selling below one hundred litres. The retailers can not sell in quantities of less than half a litre.

In cities of over 5,000 inhabitants the retail trade in liquors must not be connected with any other kind of trade. Spirits must not be stored in salesrooms which serve any other purpose than that of selling liquor. Excepted from this are only the gruz stores, which may sell liquors in sealed and labeled bottles.

All inn and saloonkeepers must supply the guests with non-spirituous liquors if required, and also with eatables as far as possible. They must keep strict order in their places and prevent anything which may lead to the abuse of alcoholic drinks. The different governments are permitted to regulate the employment of female waiters.

The police can forbid the sale of liquors before 8. a. m. The sale of drinks to minors below the age of sixteen is forbidden, except in cases where they are accompanied by grown persons or while traveling. Inn and saloonkeepers, as well as retail dealers, are forbidden to furnish liquor to people who have been convicted of common drunkenness within three years, also to all intoxicated persons. They cannot expel a drunken man from their premises except by sending him to his home or to a police station.

Inn and saloonkeepers are not allowed to furnish liquor in credit, except in cases where the guest is taking seven with his meals. No claims for liquor furnished in contradiction of this order can be legally collected.

Common drunkards and people who by their addiction to liquor endanger the public welfare or neglect their families, can be placed under legal guardianship. Such a person is legally equal to a minor. The guardian, or, in his default, the court can order the detention of such a person in an asylum for inebriates.

Fines up to 150 marks or 60 marks and imprisonment up to fourteen days may be imposed upon such persons as violate the provisions of the above law.

A fine up to 100 marks or imprisonment up to four weeks can be imposed upon any one who becomes intoxicated while engaged in work connected with the saving of life or the prevention of fire, etc.; also who attempts such work while drunk, except in cases of urgent need. The same applies to persons engaged in taking care of the health of others, such as physicians, nurses, etc.

The Reichsanzeiger, in publishing the above law, also presents the reasons for its passages in an exhaustive article covering nearly 11columns of closely printed matter. After referring to the fact that the different laws previously passed had so far proved insufficient in stopping the evils of the abuse of alcoholic drinks, it cites a number of statistics to show the terrible effects. In the year 1889-90, 2,259,828 hectolitres of pure alcohol were consumed in Germany, or 4.64 litres for each man, woman and child in Germany. Of wines, about 6.44 litres per head were consumed annually. The quantity of beer consumed annually is equal to an average of 90 litres for each human being in Germany.

The Reichsanzeiger goes on to show that while the consumption of liquor is not so great in Germany as compared with other countries, it is yet very considerable. The intemperate use of spirits increases the mortality, causes many cases of sickness, is the main fountain of pauperism, undermines mortality, and ruins the family life. The cases of chronic alcoholism and delirium tremens in Germany which have been treated in public institutions have increased from 4,272 in 1877 to 10,260 in 1885. Among the latter number were 673 females.

Still clearer is the percentage of such cases treated when compared with other patients. The alcohol class furnished nearly 20 per cent. of all the cases treated in the public hospitals. The insane asylum received 1,614 patients suffering from alcoholic mania in 1885; 1,213 men and 121 women died of delirium tremens in 1886.

Of the prisoners in German penitentiaries convicted of murder 46 per cent. used liquor, and of these again 42 per cent. were habitual drunkards. Of those who committed manslaughter 63 per cent. were drinkers. Violent assaults were in 74 per cent. of the cases committed by drunkards; criminal assault by 60 per cent., and the other crimes varied from 40 to 68 per cent. The crime of perjury showed the smallest percentage of habitual drinkers—only 26 per cent.

The article then goes on to state that with the increase of the use of alcoholic drinks vice increases and vice versa. Our present social and political life requires greater mental and physical efforts of each person. The consequent excitement and strain is a strong inducement towards indulgence. It is the duty of the government to meet this danger as far as possible.

The danger arising from the sale of liquor in general stores, the danger to morality by female attendance, and the other reasons for the different paragraphs of the law, are exhaustively treated. The law is carefully drawn, and in the event of its passage (which is thought to be almost a foregone conclusion) will, it is believed, do much to stop the spread of alcoholism.

The emperor has taken a strong interest in the matter and has heard frequent reports on the progress of the law.

Most Berlin papers republish the law without comment. Only the Freisinnige Zeitung, Richter's organ, says that the best way to combat drunkenness is to furnish the masses with sufficient and cheap food, to abolish the corn duty and similar imports.

A policeman was summoned, but Witte ran a short distance and then cut his throat.

MISS CARRIE OESTERMAN.

A Toledo Girl Jumps to the Front

And Takes a Prominent Part in the Theatrical Profession—Other Local Theatrical Matters.

The many friends of Miss Carrie Oesterman of this city will be surprised and pleased to learn that this afternoon this young lady accepted an offer to succeed her sister Bessie in the part of Lucy in Hands Across the Sea, the drama that made such a hit in this city last season.

Miss Bessie Oesterman, in consequence of her recent marriage to Chris Wall, will leave the stage for good. The management of the company were at a loss to fill her place, as she has been making one of the hits of the piece. Sunday the company passed through Toledo and the managers saw Miss Carrie at the depot. They were so struck with her appearance, her close resemblance to her sister and evident ability, that they wired from Cleveland asking her to take her part. It is quite a compliment to pay a young girl, especially when she has had no previous experience on the stage and when so much of the success of the piece depends on the part in question.

The character of Lucy was first played by her sister, Anna Belmont. Then later Miss Bessie took it, so Miss Carrie is the third sister to appear in it. The management and her many friends are confident that she will be successful. Miss Carrie Oesterman is a handsome, graceful girl, and will make a brilliant artist. It is natural for her; she can't help it. Toledoans who had the pleasure of seeing her in her first appearance on the stage as an elocutionist in the Ohio Yacht club entertainment recognized her ability at once and predicted for her a bright future. She will join the company the fore part of next week and will play in Toledo around the holidays. Her numerous friends wish her no end of success.

A First-Class Performance.

A better performance is seldom witnessed than was presented last evening on the occasion of the opening of the County Fair at Wheeler's. Every part was a study and there were no sticks in the cast to mar the performance. The scenic effects, too, were excellent, and from the brush of the celebrated New York artist, Young. The County Fair is a series of pictures of life in New England. It is a simple, natural possible story that could happen every day—and does—and every line strikes home because it is so real. The piece contains plenty of the comedy element, but it is real comedy, and in no case does it border on the farce. It is the comedy of every day life that one sees on the streets, at home or at any public gathering. One must laugh and laugh hard and one must cry also, for there is the pathetic side as well—just as there always is a pathetic side in every life. To criticise the actors would be to repeat the same thing about each. All were good, in fact it was hard to pick out a favorite. While Kate Quinn was excellent as Abigal Prue, Lysander Thompson was just as good as Otis Tucker and Richard Ferris did equally as well as Tim the Tanner, and so on through the cast. The race scene where Miss Prue's colt wins the $3,000 at the County Fair was one of the best bits of realism ever seen here. Three throughbred horses did three-quarter of a mile at full speed right before the audience, and it was a grand finale for a perfect performance. The company remains at Wheeler's the rest of the week.

Jarbeau.

Miss Vernona Jarbeau, a pretty favorite of the opera-comique school, will bring her own company to Toledo at the People's all next week. The musical comedy, "Starlight," a dramatic piece of brie-a-brac, was expressly written for Miss Jarbeau's debut as a star. The plot describes the search for a prima donna made by a musical "crank" anxious to become an operatic manager. He discovers a shepherdess with a voice, brings the rustic singer to America, and she makes her appearance at a fashionable reception, where the various guests assist her at a rehearsal. The result is of course a really entertainment, song succeeding ballad and ballad following song, each character making at least four changes of costume in each act.

The charm of "Starlight" is the bevy of pretty girls who are to be seen in it. Miss Jarbeau herself has a fasination both of voice and gesture, and she has been remarkably successful in surrounding herself with women who are comely and charming in every sense.

Sallow and leaden-hued complexions soon give place to the lovliest pink and-white, when the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla is persisted in, and cosmetics entirely abandoned. Nothing can counterfeit the rosy glow of perfect health, which blesses those who use this medicine.

LEFT HANGING TO A POLE.

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 9.—Mack Bess, a middle-aged negro, was lynched near Nearland, on the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley railway at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. His crime was an attempt to outrage Mrs. Peterson, a white woman. The assault was made Sunday evening. Bess was captured ten miles from the point where the assault was made and hanged to a telegraph pole. The body swung at the side of the railroad until late yesterday in full view of hundreds on passing trains.

CLOSED THE SCHOOLS.

The Pastor of St. Francis De Sales' New Move.

Parochial Schools Closed Down Indefinitely.

Three Hundred Pupils Thrown On the Public Schools, Which Are Already Crowded—New and Singular Complications.

The announcement that the parochial schools of St. Francis de Sales parish would not reopen but would remain closed for an indefinite period was made from the pulpit by Rev. Dr Quigley on Sunday.

The statement caused not a little surprise among the members of the congregation, and it has been about the sole subject of comment ever since.

Dr. Quigley also intimated in a general way that in the near future he would have a pleasing announcement to make in relation to the schools.

The latter is thought to refer to the fact that St. Francis de Sales' schools will, when they reopen, be placed under the management of a community of [illegible] whose system of teaching is said to be the best in the country.

The new departure involves a number of serious questions.

The attendance at St. Francis de Sales schools averaged about 300. The public schools, it is said, are full to overflowing. Then the question arises, where will these extra children go to school?

Dr. Quigley has recommended that the parents take charge of their children's education pending the opening of the schools.

This question also arises: Under the state law all children under a certain age must attend school. Can the truant officer arrest the 300 children for failure to comply with the law, and if so what can be done with them if arrested?

These are a few of the complications that may probably arise.

The erection of a new school building and the establishment of a community of Christian Brothers are foregone conclusions.

Shakers of All Creeds and Kinds

Are to be found in every locality visited by chills and fever. The very animals exhibit in such plague festered regions symptoms of the direful infection. If experience has proved, in the domain of medicine, anything conclusively, it is that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will not only eradicate from the system every vestige of the miasma-born complaint, but effectually defend residents and temporary sojourners in malaria-scourged localities against it. There is a general concensus of opinion among medical men, nowless than in the minds of the public, on this point. Not only on this continent, but in the tropics where malaria complaints assume their most virulent type, this incomparable medicinal safeguard is universally used and endorsed. Dyspepsia, biliousness, constipation, debility and kidney trouble are all thoroughly remediable by the Bitters.

SOME LATE MAGAZINES.

Condensed Wealth in the Review of Reviews.

The Century—Magazine of American History—Engineering Magazine—Outing—Quarterly Register—Home Journal—Table Talk.

Another interesting and fully illustrated paper on Siberia by Kennan opens the September number of the Century. The frontispiece is a fine likeness of the poet, Thomas Bailey Aldrich, and a sympathetic analysis of his work is made by Frank Dempster Sherman. The California paper is the description of a journey to that El Dorado in 1849 through Mexico; the present-day paper is on the government of some of our cities. The concluding chapters are given of Stockton's "The Squirrel Inn." Eggleston's "The Faith Doctor" will be concluded next month. It has been a remarkable serial, in some respects by far Dr. Eggleston's best work. Two complete stories of unusual power in this number of the Century are "Zekiel" and "Elder Marston's Revival." One of the best papers in this good number is that on "Country Newspapers." Cheap money, civil service and ballot reform are the "Topics of the Times" this month.

Perhaps the most important topic discussed in the September "Reviews of Reviews" is the stragetic value of the Hawaiian queen's kingdom, at "the cross roads of the Pacific." The international importance of the Sandwich islands is increased rather than lessened by the present signs of the disintegration of this kingdom. One learns a great deal never known before and recalls some forgotten things by the perusal of this article. Bearing upon the economic questions are the contributions on Chicago working girls and on profit and sharing as practiced in the Pillsbury flouring mills, Minneapolis. In the "Leading Articles of the Month" are full summaries of some fifty articles which appeared in August issues of American, English and foreign magazines and reviews. It is this condensation of the wealth of periodical literature which makes the Review of Reviews so valuable. The same system of condensed but full review of current events is also a part of this indispensible magazine. In the present number are fine portraits with biographical sketches of Lowell, Editor Jones, the republican chief Clarkson, the democratic fugleman Watterson, and others. The field of foreign events and personages receive no less attention. The cartoons are not up to the usual standard of this magazine, but the other illustrations are many and excellent.

In the Magazine of American History for September the frontispiece is a portrait of Columbus, the fac simile of an engraving made in Holland in 1671. Emanuel Spencer contributes a paper on the "Courtship and Marriage of Queen Isabella of Spain," accompanied by a portrait. The last chapter is given of Gen. Meredith Read's "The Spartans in Paris." The editor, Mrs. Martha Lamb, has an illustrated paper on "Some Interesting Facts about Electricity," which is entertaining as well as instructive reading. Hubert Howe Bancroft writes of "California as an Outpost of Civilization," and gives a sketch of William Tell Coleman, "hero of the vigilance committee in 1856." These are sample subjects of the variety of topics treated in the September number of this always valuable magazine.

The September number of the Engineering Magazine compares well with its predecessors and with the current issues of older established magazines. The second paper on "Ventilation of Homes and Schools," the leading article, is well worth study. Another writer, Benjamin Reece, civil engineer, tells "Why the State Should not Own the Railroads," a subject of such general interest it seems all magazines are determined to add their quota to the discussion. Mr. Reece's is one of the best from the side which we regard as the safe and right one. Another subject of present interest discussed in this number of the Engineering Magazine is "The Iniquity of Leasing Convict Labor." All through the papers are well prepared by writers who have special knowledge of their subjects, and the subjects are those in which the people who are doing the world's work and its thinking are interested.

The following is the table of contents of the September number of "Outing": "On the Plains of Assiniboia," "Trouting in the Metis Lakes," "Running High Jumping" (part II.), "A Coon Hunt," "A Log Match," "Canoeing on the Miramichi" (part II.), "The Massachusetts Volunteer Militia" (part IV.), "Yacht Clubs of the East" (part II.), "Some Modern Achievements of the Camera," "A Day Among the Prairie Chickens," "The Home of the Red Deer in England," "Harry's Career at Yale" (continued), "Caught by a Wheel," and the usual good editorial and department work.

The Quarterly Register of Current Events for the second quarter of 1891 is at hand. Among the international affairs treated are: The Behring sea dispute, reciprocity, the dispute with Italy, the Brazil dispute, the partition of Africa. Events of note in England, France, Italy and other countries of Europe are reviewed, and in India, Japan, Australasia, East and West Africa. The departments of literature, art, science, religion, society, are well filled, though the objection might be made that there is a good deal of space in the last given to scandal. But, then, there has been a large amount of scandal in "society" in the last quarter.

The editorial staff of the Ladies Home Journal is announced to be Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, Marth Parlon, Margaret Bottome, Mrs. Isabel A Mallon, Eben E. Rexford, Elizabeth Robinson Scovil, Maude Haywood, Foster Coates, Kate Upson Clarke, Emma M. Hooper, Kate Tannatt Woods, with Edward W. Bok as editor-in-chief. From some of these names some of the departments can be guessed at. Of course Eben E. Rexford has charge of the flower department, for who knows more about these sweet visitors than he? So, too, Mrs. Mallon is authority on fashions, as Miss Parloa is on cooking, and Mrs. Bottome, as president of "The King's Daughters," has charge of that department of the magazine. The editor-in-chief is eminently qualified to see that each fits into his or her place, as they all do. Each number of the Journal, also, has a variety of excellent contributed articles. In the September number is a continuance of L dy Macdonald's "Unconventional Holiday;" the seventh paper on "Women's Chances as Breadwinners;" a touching and beautiful nonpolitical story, "An Ugly Little Girl;" a chapter of Mrs. Whitney's serial, "A Golden Gossip;" and other interesting papers. Number IX of "Unknown Wives of Well-known Men," Mr. Bok's contribution, is this month Mrs. Will Carleton, with portrait.

"Table Talk" for September is an excellent number of another magazine in which womankind delights. What to get to eat is a question that can always be answered after reading Mrs. Rorer's seasonable menu for each month, and the other vexed question of what to wear is helped toward solution by Miss Forney's answers to fashion inquiries. "Fashionable Crazes" tells of some things good to avoid and gives some useful suggestions. Useful information is conveyed in the answers to housekeepers' inquiries. The recipes offered are of special value at this time.

Literary Notes.

A catalogue has been issued of the Dante collections in the Boston public library and at Harvard. It includes 1,200 books and many manuscripts.

"An Utter Failure," announced by D. Appleton & Co. is by the author of "Rutledge," one of the most popular and powerful novels ever written by an American. The author is Mrs. Miram C. Harris.

The Century company announces Kennan's "Siberia and the Exile System" will be published in October. The work will contain the papers already published in the Century Magazine, revised and added to, with new matter, statistics, maps, etc. It will be issued in two volumes.

Appleton & Co. will publish a "Life of James Boswell," and the world will soon know whether the Scotchman was more than the shadow of the man whom he delighted to honor. The book will contain portraits of Boswell and Dr. Johnson, and it is said the text is very entertaining. Mr. Percy Fitzgerald is the biographer of the biographer.

Chas. H. Sergel & Co. announce for early publication "Congressman Swanson." The book will probably be an interesting one, as the author is C. C. Post, of the Southern Farmers' Alliance, the author of "Driven from Sea to Sea." It is probable Mr. Post's reverence for congressmen as he sees them will not restrain his pen from caricature.

The suggestion is offered that since Mr. Howells and Mr. Warner gather the essays they prepare for their departments in Harper's Magazine and offer them in book form to readers who delight in their work, George William Curtis should upholster his Easy Chair in the same manner. The suggestion is a good one, and Mr. Curtis' essays, if offered in book form, would find a ready sale if not a large one. The intelligence of the average reader might decide the sale.

NEW YORK REPUBLICANS.

A Red Hot Convention in Rochester.

Opposition to Fassett Growing Every Hour.

Prominent Newspapers Openly Assert That He Cannot be Elected If Nominated—An Adjournment Taken.

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 9.—The reported removal of Mr. White from the field was regarded last night as giving additional strength to Fassett, because Mr. Platt had been quoted as strongly in favor of Mr. White first, and Mr. Fassett for second choice for the nomination for governor.

The White men yesterday spoke rather bitterly of the fact that many of Mr. White's friends had gone over to Fassett and that others had promised to go to Fassett when White's name should be out of the way. The withdrawal of White's name would have given these second choice men an opportunity to vote for Fassett on the first ballot. But if Mr. White's name is presented to the convention it is altogether likely that Senator Hiscock's midnight prediction that Mr. Fassett would be nominated on the first ballot will not be verified.

It also makes possible a delay which will give the anti-Fassett forces a chance to make a combination when the strength of all the candidates has been shown.

The Erie county delegation is angry enough to go into almost any combination to beat Fassett, and the bolt of the Buffalo Express this morning has strengthened them in their opposition to Fassett.

The particular opposition of the Erie county people to Fassett is based on his hostility to canal legislation and his advocacy of high license when he was in the state legislature. What makes them most angry at this time is the way Fassett was brought out and pushed to the front at the last minute, to the disadvantage of their candidate, Beecher.

The Washington and Rensslaer county delegations this morning determined to place the name of Gen. Carr before the convention for governor.

James H. Potts, of the Troy Times, will put him in nomination, and ex-Senator C. L. McArthur will second the nomination. This makes six candidates in the field.

In the Hall.

Washington skating rink, transformed into a model convention hall, capable of accommodating nearly 3,000 persons, is gaily decorated, and every arrangement has been made by the local committeemen to facilitate the business which is to be transacted here to-day.

The galleries are heavily draped with red, white and blue bunting. A large eagle is perched above the stage and portraits of President Harrison and Vice-President Morton adorn the hall.

A wire has been run from the building to an adjoining lot, where the Lincoln gun squad is in waiting to receive the signal to fire 13 guns in honor of the nominee of the republican party for governor of the Empire State.

The mandolin orchestra, with seats on the stage, entertained the visitors. Music was also furnished by the Fifty-fourth regiment band, the Maennerchor-Liedertafel and a well trained quartet. Shortly after 10 o'clock crowds of persons, some with tickets of admission, and many without, began the march to the hall.

To Knock Out Fassett.

As the more prominent personages reached the hall they were received with enthusiasm. Gen. John M. Knapp, chairman of the state committee, received a rousing ovation.

Before the delegates came to the hall there had been much plotting and planning at the headquarters of the different delegations and a number of important conferences had been held. The lieutenant-governorship seemed to be still uncertain. Mr. Vrooman would not state positively that he would accept the nomination and his friends were busily at work trying to persuade him to decline it.

No other name but that of Mr. McAlpine was prominently mentioned in connection with the place, although some of the delegates expressed the opinion that Sloan's declination would not stand if the nomination was urged upon him.

The Becker men began their brass band campaign early, but it was more an anti-Fassett than a Becker campaign.

The bolt of the Buffalo Express was followed this morning by the bolt of the Buffalo News. E. H. Butler, proprietor of the News, who is here with the Buffalo delegation, announced that Erie county did not insist on Becker but would take any man who was not objectionable as Fassett was. Fassett, he said, would lose Erie and Chautauqua counties.

The News bolt was the sensation of the morning. The anti-Fassett men are playing a game of delay this morning. They wish to delay the nomination until to-morrow, to give them a chance for combination.

At 11:30 Gen. Knapp called the convention to order, Rev. D. Stebbins offered prayer and the quartette sang "America," the audience joining in. Chairman Knapp in his opening address made a reference to Blaine which was received with wild enthusiasm.

W. W. Goodrich, of Brooklyn, was chosen temporary chairman and delivered an address bitterly denouncing the democratic party. His speech was interrupted by cheers for Blaine and Harrison and applause for Thomas B. Reed, when the respective names were mentioned.

Deafening Cheers for Blaine.

When Mr. Goodrich "pointed with pride" to the administration of President Harrison there was gradually increasing applause which culminated in cheers. At the mention of "the matchless foresight of our beloved disciple Secretary Blaine," the applause rose again and before its conclusion a delegate sprang to his feet and demanded "Three cheers for J. G. Blaine." They were given. As the sound died away another delegate sprang up and called for "Three cheers for President Harrison." They were given with even more vigor and followed by a "tiger."

The name of Speaker Reed was met with applause and all through the speech every point made by the speaker was applauded—with one exception. There was a slight hissing heard when Mr. Goodrich spoke of the application of the system of civil service reform to the navy yards.

On motion of Mr. Cheney, of Onondaga, the secretaries of the state committees made the temporary secretaries of the convention.

At 1:32 p. m. the convention took a recess until 4 p. m.

COLD WATER PEOPLE

Massachusetts Prohibs in Session To-day.

License, High or Low, Denounced as a Covenant With Death and Agreement With Hell.

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 9.—The prohibition state convention met at 10:30 this morning in Mechanics' hall. There was a good attendance. W. H. Partridge was chosen temporary chairman and delivered an address full of hopefulness, which was received with applause.

E. T. Stevens was made temporary chairman. The following is the substance of the platform adopted:

The prohibitionists of Massachusetts in annual convention assembled reverently acknowledge their accountability to Almighty God and to their fellow citizens for the proper exercise of the elective franchise and declare their faith and convictions of political duty as hereinafter set forth:

The platform next describes the drink evil, and declares that its suppression is the first duty of government. Good men should unite to check the conspiracy of the liquor dealers for the promotion of their iniquitous traffic. License, high or low, is a covenant with death, and an agreement with hell.

The partnership between the government and the rum power must be dissolved. It is inconsistent to strike at a lottery and to license saloons. All revenue from vice is abhorrent. Both the old parties in Massachusetts have shown their favor to the liquor traffic by licensing it.

The attention of the supporters of missions is called to the fact that Boston leads in the exportation of rum to Africa, and it would be wiser to stop this tide of death at its source than struggle with its desolating flood there.

The state department is charged with becoming the agents of foreign lands for the beer lords of this country and is denounced for refusing to unite with other nations for the suppression of slave and rum traffic. The fact is deplored that the president finds five kinds of wine necessary for his official banquets and that the vice-president applies for a liquor license.

The failure of congress to interfere with the rum traffic is deplored. The prohibition of the manufacture of liquor except for medicinal and scientific uses is demanded. Honest civil service and woman suffrage are called for.

HUNG TO A HOOK.

Martin Brown Attempts to End His Existence.

Martin Brown, a German, giving his home as Marion, O., was brought to the central police station at 1 o'clock this afternoon in an almost exhausted condition. Brown for the past month has been working for Chas. Hanner, as a porter.

He was sent to Mr. Hanner's new house on Fourteenth street to clean up the place. Mr. Hamer going up later in the day found the man hanging on a hook in a closet and almost dead.

Brown had tied an ordinary handkerchief around his neck and attempted to hang himself.

Mr. Hanner took him down and called for the patrol wagon, when he was brought to the station and locked up.

The man is evidently out of his mind, as his actions at the police station were those of a man either insane or under the influence of drink.

He could give no reasonable account of his actions.

MORMON MISSIONARIES.

London, Sept. 9.—In Great Britain and Scandinavia public attention is becoming aroused to the proceedings of Mormon "missionaries." Especial attention in England has been drawn to two young missionaries working in Lancashire and Yorkshire and much indignation is expressed by the people at the methods employed in the work of proselyting. It is possible that the attention of the government will be called to the matter.

WENT ON A STRIKE.

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 9.—A strike of freight conductors on the Nashville & Decatur division of the Louisville & Nashville railroad occurred last night owing to the company's declining to reinstate a man who was discharged for refusing to take out his train.

CHEATING IN HORSE BLANKETS

Nearly every pattern of 5/A Horse Blanket is imitated in color and style. In most cases the imitation looks just as good as the genuine, but it hasn't the warp threads, and so lacks strength, and while it sells for only a little less than the genuine it isn't worth one-half as much. The fact that 5/A Horse Blankets are copied is strong evidence that they are THE STANDARD, and every buyer should see that the 5/A trade mark is sewed on the inside of the Blanket.

FAMOUS BLIND MEN.

Loss of Sight Not Always a Bar to Success.

Some Names from a Very Long List—Scholars, Authors, Philosophers and Travelers Among Them.

So much interest has been manifested by the public in the education of the little deaf mutes, Helen Keller, Edith Thomas and Willie Robin, that one is apt to forget that there have been many cases on record almost as wonderful as these recent ones. A few of the most interesting cases may be of interest as showing how thoroughly the mind can triumph over the obstacles of its environment. It has often seemed as if nature, to compensate for the lack of sight, has given to the afflicted person an extraordinary keenness in the use of other faculties.

From the beginning of history there have been blind poets, musicians, rulers and statesmen. The majestic measures of the sightless Homer, "the blind old poet of Scio's rocky isle," the fiery and impassioned stanzas of Ossian, and the high and heroic epics of Milton, will ever appeal to the emotions of hope and love and courage.

No Drawback to Learning.

In the walks of learning blindness ha seemed to prove no drawback. Didotus, the Stoic (100 B. C.), "guide philosopher and friend" of Cicero, was a famous teacher of geometry. The famous Didymus (A. D. 313-395) filled for many years the chair of theology in the school of divinity at Alexandria and was the author of a multitude of valuable works on history and theology. It is said that St. Anthony, the hermit, was filled with astonishment that so profound a scholar should regret the lack of a sense "which we possess only in common with gnats and ants."

James Shegkins, who died in the latter part of the sixteenth century, taught physics and philosophy at Tubingen for nearly a score of years, and left many works on different branches of science. The ascetic St. Simon would have pronounced him a man after his own heart, since he steadfastly refused to have an operation performed, although assured of its success, since he "did not wish to be compelled to see things which might appear offensive or ridiculous."

A book entitled "An Historical and Geographical Account of River Amazons" contains a faithful chart, which is remarkable from the fact that its designer, who was the author of the book as well, Field Marshal Count de Hagen, was totally blind when the book was written.

A Great Mathematician.

The great mathematician, Euler (1707-1783), lost his sight when past 50 years of age, but after this misfortune wrote works which have been translated into almost every civilized language; he was elected honorary member of the Academy of Science of Paris, and received various prizes from scientific bodies, among them one for an essay on the inequalities of planetal motion. Among other noted blind scholars was John Gough (1749-1825), the celebrated botanist, mathematician and philosopher. It is said that near the end of his life a rare plant was given him for examination, when he at once gave its name, stating that he had met with it only once before, 50 years previously.

Dr. Nicholas Saunderson (1682-1739), the friend of Sir Isaac Newton, and his successor as Lucas professor of mathematics in Cambridge university, was totally blind; yet he became member of the Royal society, was made doctor of laws at the request of King George II., and wrote many valuable mathematical works.

Dr. Henry Moyes (1750-1807), the celebrated lecturer on optics, was himself blind from infancy; but on one occasion he was overturned in a stage coach on a dark and stormy night, and the driver and passengers, with their full compliment of eyes, had to ask for assistance, and under his direction the coach and horses were extricated from the ditch. Dr. Davidson, the inventor of the apparatus for removing fire-damp from mines, was a celebrated chemist, and, despite his blindness, carried out most complicated experiments, to the amazement of all who saw him. He had previously fitted himself for the ministry, but the judges decided that his misfortune prevented him from undertaking clerical duties. The question might well be put as to which were the really blind ones.

A Classical Teacher.

Dr. Nelson, of Rutgers college, in spite of total blindness, was a most successful classical teacher. Artman relates that on one occasion, while he was a student, a dispute arose between Mr. Nelson and the professor as to the construction of a certain sentence, when the professor exclaimed: "You must confess, sir, that the comma shows conclusively that my view is correct."

Slightly coloring and turning his sightless eyeballs toward the book which he mechanically held in his hand, young Nelson replied: "I beg to inform you, sir, that in my Heine's edition it is a colon."

Soon after Mr. Nelson started a classical school, which soon became the best patronized in the country, and, as Dr. Griffin says, "he succeeded in placing classical education on higher ground than any of his predecessors or contemporaries had done, and felt proud to think that he was, in some measure, a benefactor to that college which a few years before he had entered in poverty and quitted in blindness."

In the realms of natural history one would hardly expect to find the blind eminent, yet Francis Hyber, a Swiss (1750-1881), was one of the greatest authorities on beekeeping. He conducted investigations for many years, aided by his wife, and published several valuable works on the subject of the origin and formation of wax, the swarming of bees, which won for him recognition from the foremost scientific societies of Europe.

A Volume of Travel.

A volume of travels by a blind man, descriptive of people and scenery, would seem to be almost incredible, yet James Holman, ex-lieutenant of the royal English navy, was the author of such a book, published in 1835, describing his travels through Austria, Poland, Saxony, Prussia, Hanover, Russia and Siberia. Nor was this the limit of his travels, since at various times he visited most of the other countries of Europe, as well as the East Indies and the American continent. Nearly the whole civilized world was traversed by this indefatigable blind voyager, who added to his enterprise and ability to describe in glowing and cultivated words the wonders he had "seen."

One might dwell much longer upon the subject without exhausting the facts which are recorded about the blind who have shown literary or scientific activity. The list of authors, poets, clergymen, teachers, and even doctors and and lawyers is one of surprising magnitude.

In mechanical and industrial pursuits some of the most painstaking work has been accomplished by the blind. Encouraged by the success of blind pianists and musicians, the typewriter is already coming into extensive use among the blind, and blind seamstresses, embroiderers, lacemakers, etc., are not rarities.

Unlooked for Occupation.

There are other vocations in which those deprived of sight have equalled or excelled their more fortunate competitors, in which one would hardly look for such competition. Wm. Kennedy, a native of Ireland, was one of the most celebrated clock makers of his time, and supported a large family by his skill in this direction, and in the making and repairing of musical instruments, cabinet and loom building, etc.

John Huntley, an Englishman, at about the same time, was almost equally famous for his skill in the making and repairing of watches and clocks, and was often successful where his seeing rivals failed. Among others equally skillful in their respective lines were David Mapes, the wagonmaker, of Angelica, N. Y.; Stephen Bagera, the carpenter and builder, of Steubenville; Tom Wilson, of Dumfries, Scotland, the wood turner; Joseph Strong, the organ builder; Nathan Price, the bookbinder; and Giovanni Gambasio, the sculptor.

The pathetic story of the blind king of Bohemia, who fell in the battle of Crecy, is more than rivalled by the illustrious Toussaint, better known as Zisca, the great Bohemian patriot and reformer. Early in his military career he lost an eye, and at the siege of Ruby an arrow destroyed the other. Undaunted by this misfortune, he rose from his bed of suffering and again led his armies to victory.

After many campaigns his forces compelled the Emperor Sigismund to grant all their demands, and peace was proclaimed. A grateful people sought to place him on the throne, but he had no ambition, save to serve his country, and advised the formation of a republic.

A Blind Sailor.

It is natural to think of the sailor in connection with the soldier, and, marvelous though it may seem, in William Talbot, of Tipperary, born about 1789, is an instance of a blind sailor. For four years Talbot followed the sea, going aloft in any weather without fear.

Among all of those whose mind and courage have raised them beyond the deprivation of sight, however, the name of John Metcalf must always be pre-eminent. When a boy he joined his comrades in their sports, apparently regardless of his lack of sight. A fearless climber, he excelled in the robbing of birds' nests and fruit trees, and played hare and hounds with a skill equal to any of his playmates.

He was an excellent horseman, and as a young man excelled in hunting, racing and cock fighting. He became a thorough musician, early supporting himself by his skill in that direction, and later enlisting as a musician in the army. He established a large line between New York and Kanesboro, and drove the stage himself.

At one time he was engaged in smuggling, and at another acted as a guide for travelers at night or when the roads were covered with snow. On a wager he rode three times round a circle drawn on Forest Moor without deviating from the course, against a skilled horseman, and won the race. He was fond of riding to hounds, and seldom failed to be "in at the death."

Hero of an Elopement.

He was tall and strong, handsome and merry, and it is not surprising that he was a favorite with the ladies, which is shown by the fact that he eloped with and married the belle of the county on the day she was to be married to a wealthy landowner.

The most remarkable part of his history, however, is the occupation he finally chose, which was no other than the surveying and building of highways and bridges. In this work no natural obstacle could daunt him, and the skill with which he would alone go over the proposed course with his stout stick, ascending mountains, fording streams, penetrating almost inaccessible fastnesses, determining the nature of the soil and the requirements of the work, was only less marvelous than the engineering skill with which he laid his plans and carried them out. To this day none of his successors have been able to improve upon the work of John Metcalf, the blind roadbuilder.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

A GREAT GIFT TO THE PEOPLE.

There have been great advancements in medical science during the last few years. It on longer surprises us to hear that the blind see, the deaf hear, the lame talk. Heretofore sufferers from nervous and chronic diseases could have a cure of their cases accomplished only by a personal visit to one of the large cities at great expense of travel and professional fees. At the present day all this is changed. A celebrated specialist in the cure of nervous and chronic diseases, known all over the United States on account of his enormous practice, great skill, and thousands of sufferers he has restored to health by his system of harmless vegetable remedies, proposes to send to all sufferers from any form of nervous or long-standing diseases, a valuable written diagnosis of their cases fully explaining their diseases and telling how they can be cured free of charge. Thousands are being cured. Don't delay, but write at once about your case to this great physician, Dr. Greene, 35 W. 14th street, New York, the discoverer of the great Nerve Cure. Dr. Greene's Nervura. Send for his symptoms blank to fill out.

A country judge in Hungary gave a decision a few days ago of which Solomon himself might be proud. Members of the Nazarene sect in the town of Gyoma requested his honor to be allowed to crucify one of their number "who was a Messiah, and had been called by heaven to save men." The judge for a moment was dumbfounded. "Friends," he replied, after recovering his senses, "I do not wish to interfere with your religious practices. If your Messiah wishes to be crucified, let him prepare himself for death. Remember, however, that if he does not rise again in three days, I shall cause every one of you to be hanged." The Nazarenes, it is needless to add, allowed their chief to live.

This Engraving presents the reverse side, or Political Map. The Map of the United States on the other side does not need illustration. The entire Map is printed in eleven colors, making it very attractive. Seven colors are used on this side of the Map. It is mounted with rollers, top and bottom, and well bound with tape on sides. It is the largest map ever printed on one sheet of paper. The engraving on both sides of this map cost more than $6,000. Each Political Party seen on the attached engraving is represented on the map in a distinct color. When a Party begins, a color appears, and when the Party dissolves the colors disappears.
